The speaker stated the question to be upon the passage of the order for the committee on rules to take up the Bland seign-lorage bill in the house, discuss, it for two hours and then proceed to vote upon its passage, or upon the adoption of any amendments that may be pending, with the intervention only of a motion to reconsider and lay on the table.

Mr. Outhwaite asked the yeas and nays, when Mr. Reed suggested that the last vote disclosed the presence of no quorum, and asked if the house ought not first to inform itself that a quorum is present. "Or maybe," he continued, with a smile, "the

The speaker replied that he had not, but that the practice of the house had been, after an adjournment, or even recess, to assume that a quorum was present. The roll was called on the adoption of the order, resulting—yeas, 166; nays, 13.

Before the vote was announced Messrs. Kilgore and Everett changed their votes, having voted aye, to nay.

The vote reached just a quorum, Speaker Crisp having voted to make the required number.

A wave of applause swept over the democrate and populist seats when the speaker stated that the bill was before the house for consideration and amendment and ordered it to be read. When this had been completed and the author of the bill offered a substitute for the pending measure, directing the secretary of the treasury to coin the seigniforage of the silver builion in the treasury to the amount of $55,156,681 and issue certificates thereon as fast as coined, such coin or certificates to be used in the payment of the ordinary expenditures of the treasury, and the secretary is authorized to issue certificates in excess of such coinage if he deems it necessary, but not to exceed the amount named. The second section provides for the coinage of the remaining buillion in the treasury and the destruction of certificates issued against it. The act shall not be construed to make any change in the legal tender or redemption quality of the notes of the act of 1850.

Mr. Outhwaite moved to strike out the second section of the substitute.

Mr. Cannon offered a long amendment to the Johnson amendment, proposing to buy silver buillion until the price reaches $1.29 an ounce, and providing for coinage under the act of 1827, when silver reaches that price.

Mr. Bland made a point of order against the amendment, and after a brief argument by Messrs. Cannon and Stockdale that it was germane, providing for extended pur-chase and coinage of silver, the speaker ruled it out of order.

Mr. Abbott offered as an amendment his bill introduced last month, directing the coinage every month of 2,000,000 ounces of silver bullion, the redemption of the notes issued under the Sherman act of 1890 in silver or gold, as the amount of coin of each kind may exceed that of the other; that notes equal in amount to the seigniorage of the treasury be issued, but none of less denomination than $5; that the treasury notes be issued upon deposits of gold or silver coin, and repealing all laws author-uzing the issue of gold and silver certifi-

FAVORABLE CHARGE BY THE JUDGE.

If the Englishman Consented to Be Hit There Was No Case of Assault All the Sports Get Drunk.

Jacksonville, Fla., March 1 .- Once more the prize fighters have gone up against the "peace and dignity" of the state of Florida, as Gövernor Mitchell would phrase it, and once more the "peace and dignity" has been knocked out in short order.

At 3:51 o'clock this afternoon the jury in the case against James J. Corbett, charged with violating the laws of Florida by engaging in a prize fight, retired to make up a verdict. At 4:07, or sixteen minutes later the jury returaed and the foreman handed the verdict to the state's attorney, who

We, the jury, find the defendant no guilty.

A broad smile spread over Corbett's face as he heard these reassuring words and the sports who crowded the courtroom would have cheered had they not been in-formed by Judge Phillips when the jury came in that he would send any person to jail for contempt who dared to express audible approval or disapproval of the verdict.

Charley Mitchell was present when the verdict was announced and he leaned over and grasped Corbett by the hand and whispered congratulations. Mitchell, of course, considered the verdict in the light of a practical acquittal for himself, as a case against him of a similar nature is pending. There were four women in the courtroom at the time, two of them members of the "After Dark" company, and they braved the wrath of Judge Phillips to the extent of airily waiving their hands to

The proceedings leading up to the verdict were very tame. Court convened at 9:30 o'clock a. m. and the state resumed the examination of its witnesses. The attorneys for the prosecution tried to elicit test:mony to show that the fight was brutal and to make the witnesses admit that from the very brutality of the contest Corbett and Mitchell must have harbored malice against one another. The state, however, did not make much headway on this line and then attempted to bring in the check for $20,000 which Corbett received in public after the fight. All of the witnesses had seen a piece of paper handed Corbett, but all were innocent of any knowledge of its

A Property Check. Jack Keefe, who was chief of police when the fight occurred and supervised it, was questioned about the check. He was at the theater when it was presented. When asked if the paper was not a check he said that he did not know. Upon being pressed further in regard to its being a check he said that he did not know, but thought it might be a "property" check as is used on the stage, just the same as "property" vegetables which theatrical people make believe to eat. The answer caused considerable merriment.

The state closed here and the defense announced that it would introduce no wit nesses. Argument was then begun. The actorneys were brief and when they con-cluded Judge Philips charged the jury. The gist of the charge was as follows:

"It is immaterial whether it was a glove contest or a sparring match, or boxing match, if it constitutes and amounts to fight as already defined. It is a violatio of the law of Florida against fighting by previous appointment, as the court ha already read. In considering the guilt or innocence of the defendant, under the second count of the information-that is to say, the count charging assault and bat-tery-if it appears from the evidence that the blows were given which the parties mutually agreed upon and entered and consented to, the court instructs you that if such blows were given in a contest, which in the usual course of things and being carried on in such a manner as would not inflict or cause bodily harm or njury to the person. The consent of the person receiving the blows excuses the assault and battery and the de-fendant under such circumstances cannot be found guilty of assault and battery. But if the contest in which the parties were engaged in was of such a nature and being carried on in such a way as in the course of things was caused bod-ily harm or injury, and the blows were given with the intention to cause bodily harm or appreciable bodily pain, the con sent of the party receiving the blows i defense to the charge of assault and bat-tery, and the party can be convicted of as-sault and battery under such circum-

TOM REED'S FRIENDS ARE BOOMERS

A Story Comes from Hawaii to the Metropolis to the Effect That Queen Lil Was Drunk Not Long Ago. New York, February 28 .- (Special Corredence.)-Now, that the bill consolidating New York and Brooklyn has passed both houses of the legislature, and has received the governor's signature, public opinion solidly endorses it. Brooklyn has more than 1,000,000 inhabitants, and is altogether too large and important a city to remain sidetracked as a mere suburb of New York. When the prousions of the enabling act are carried out and voted upon, the greater New York, as the newspapers call it, will have a population of 3,000,000, and an area of about 125 square miles.

Unquestionably this consolidation is in the interest of peace and order, economy and good government. Several other towns besides Brooklyn will be in the annexed district, and when the union becomes an accomplished fact the new city will rank with London, Paris and Berlin, leading all but London. The suburban towns will be freed from their village shackles, and will become a part of one of the greatest cities on the globe. The annexation takes in Brooklyn, Long Island City, the towns of Kings county, Flushing, Newtown, Jamaica, Weschester county and portions of the towns of East Chester, Pelham, Hempstead and Richmond county . The people of these communities will vote on the question in November next.

Greater New York win probably continue under democratic rule, and will be the model city of the world so far as good government and economy are concerned, while its wealth and vast interests will make it the leading commercial and financial center. Consolidation is the order of the day in business and in municipal affairs, and it is safe to say that other American cities with populous suburbs will very soon follow the example of New York. Such combinations make government less expensive and furnish the united communities with all the conveniences of civilization at a smaller cost than would be the case under separate governments.

Mr. Hewitt Explains. Mr. Hewitt has attempted to explain his recent speech before the Southern Society. He says that it was misunderstood. When he spoke of the dangerous ignorance of our statesmen he did not confine his criticism to the south. He meant the states men of all sections. But it is well known othat Mr. Hewitt was jumping on the statesmen who differ with him on the silver question, and most of them are from the west and south. He believes that all American statesmen, except himself and his goldbug friends, are remarkably ignorant. But he will not discuss the matter. Following Mr. Podsnap's example, he says: "I don't want to know about it; I don't choose to discuss it; I don't admit it." This is Mr. Hewitt's way of dealing with the silver question and the statesmen who do not agree with him. Booming Tom Reed. Chairman Joseph H. Manley, of the Maine republican committee, is hard at work starting Tom Reed's presidential boom, He has sent the following circular to leading republicans all over the state: "My Dear Sir-The state committee desires to print and distribute 75,000 copies of the speech of Hon. Thomas B. Helping the Poor.

Mr. Nathan Straus, who has done so much good with his coal yards, where the poor obtain coal at cost, now proposes another important reform. He is at work providing cheap and respectable funerals for the poor. The city undertakers make a decent funeral cost from $100 to $150, and during this spell of hard times many worthy working people suffer great distress when they see the Potter's field confronting themselves and their families. Mr. Straus is not offering anything free. He simply proposes to provide funerals at cost. At a time when so many toilers have been compelled to use their savings to support their families it goes without saying that cheap funerals will be a boon to thousands of unfortunate people.

The Hawaiian Queen. According to Lieutenant Lucien Young, of the Boston, the Hawaiian queen was gloriously drunk when she promulgated the new constitution. Lieutenant Young says that when the queen read her proclams tion he thought that she was suffering from stage fright, but when he went into the reception room and met her he saw that she was under the influence of stimulants, and was, in point of fact, drunk. When he learned that she was among her supporters he recognized the gravity of the situation and at once returned to the Boston and informed his commanding officer

Industries Resuming. Industrial advices are of a cheerful charcter. In Danbury, Conn., many of the hat factories have resumed and are running on full time. Of the 4,000 bolters who were out of work a few weeks ago about 3,000 are now at work. At New Millford and Bethel the factories have resumed and the operatives are all at work. The Milk ville, Mass., rubber works will resume in two weeks and will employ 1,400 men. At Newcastle, Pa., the Etna and Atlantic furnaces have resumed, giving employment to 700 men. From Ux ridge, Mass., the news comes that the Hecla mill has started up again, employing 200 hands. Similar advices have been received from all over the country, and it is a settled fact that we are at the beginning of a big in-dustrial revival.

Congressman Breckinridge. In club circles here the politicians and men about town say that Congressman Breckinridge's defense is fatal to his reputation. His lawyers may succeed in proving that Miss Pollard was a woman of bad character before Breckinridge met her, but this will not do him any good. The fact that he asked Mrs. Blackburn to chaperone her as his promised wife completely smashes him. He might just as well have remained silent and allowed Miss Pollard to take her verdict against him.

Mrs. Maybrick's Case. A number of New Yorkers have petitioned the home secretary in England to permit Mrs. Maybrick, the alleged husband poisoner, to be hypnotized. They claim that under hypnotic conditions she could be induced to tell the truth and settle all doubts as to her guilt or innocence. It is not likely that the home secretary will pay any attention to the petition. Such methods are not popular in England, and if Mrs. Maybrick's friends desire to obtain her release they will succeed better by remaining quiet. The British authorities never yield to outside clamor.

Female Suffrage. The female suffrage advocates expect the New York constitutional convention to eliminate the word "male" from the constitution. They boast that two states have already granted female suffrage and are confident that in time every state will grant it. Their national convention in Atlanta next year is expected to accomplish great things. Leaders of the movement say that when they capture the conservative south their success will be assured. They are a bright and brainy set-these suffrage women-and when they visit Atlanta their programme will be both intellectual and entertaining. A Good One on Vance. A friend of Senator Vance who chanced to meet him in Florida, tells a good one as coming from the distinguished North Car-

COMING TO SILVER. Even Henry Clews Comes Over to the Bimetallic Side.

New York, March 1.-Henry Clews in an open financial letter says: "The present attitude of Germany in connection with silver foreshadows a strong probability of a conference of nations being convened at an early date for the purpose of arriving at an agreement. Since he Brussels conference importa have occurred in connection with the silver problem. India has suspended free coinage, and the United States government has repealed the Sherman law, Silver, therefore, is now really without a responsible sponsor and is drifting about like a ship without a rudder, while it is recognized almost everywhere as essential that it should be used as a money metal and regulated as such through international action, which is now really the only solution. The greatest ne cessity for such an agreement at the time of the Brussels conference, was felt in this country owing to our especial needs.

"The situation has since changed, however, so that all the European nations are at present much more concerned in such an outcome than we are. The initiative, therefore, will doubtless soon come from that quarter, and Germany, it would appear is likely to take that action. The resignation of Mr. Gladstone as premier of Great Britain, if the recent reports to that effect materialize, will remove England's opposition to international bimetallism. Such an agreement, if entered into, will have a most important influence upon the world's products, finances and securities by infusing new life therein, and cannot fail to cause a material enhancement of all values, be sides make a strong metal link between all nations that cannot fail to be productive of strengthening friendships and commercial and business alliances of every description throughout the world for the mutual bene-

New York, March 1 .- (Specal.)-Cornelius N. THE OLD MAN IS IN GOOD VOICE

He Says That the Time for Shuttlecock Is Over.

HIS BEST SPEECH IN SEVERAL YEARS

It Is a Declaration of War on the Upper House-Balfour Replies That the Opposition Does Not Fear the Premier.

London, March 1 .- As Mr. Gladstone entered the house of commons at 3:30 o'clock this fternoon, he was greeted with a storm of cheers which lasted several minutes. He walked directly to his usual seat and held a whispered conversation with John Morley, chief secretary for Ireland, and Sir William Harcourt, chancellor of the exchequer, who sat on either side of him, most of his conversation being addressed to the latter. Lord Roseberry, who is looked upon as the coming premier, occupied a seat in the press gallery. The speaker put the question that the amendments of the house of lords to the local government bill be considered, when Mr. Gladstone arose and addressed the house in what was in many respects the most remarkable speech he has delivered for many years. He showed no sign of waning power, except for an occasionally slight huskiness in his otherwise resonant

Mr. Gladstone began by saying that the government had reached the conclusion that the time for passing bills back and forth from one house to another had ended, and had decided upon a definite course. Laughter and cheers interrupted the pre-mier, who, when he was able to resume, spoke as follows:

To continue the process would be a loss "To continue the process would be a loss of dignity to both houses and the government has decided to stop the operation and take a decided course. The government had the choice of rejecting the house of lords' amendments and abandoning hope of passing the bill, or of accepting them under protest with the hope of soon re-versing them. The government adopted the second choice. (Cheers.)
"The action of the house of lords regarding the bills of this session has raised a question of the gravest character. Two of these bills—the home rule bill and the em-ployers' liability bill—occupied the attention of the house of commons 100 days.

They involved vast labors. Members of the house of commons have worked through this session almost double the length of time of any session on record, and with an unqualed amount of intensity. This labor for the purpose of enacting beneficial leg-islation. The house of lords, without giving it much consideration, wrecked that." The Issue Formed.

After further review ing the action of the lords in the past on various vital questions, Mr. Gladstone said: "We have now come to a more acute stage. The question is the judgment of the house of lords is not only to modify, but to annihilate the whole work of the house of commons. (Continued cheering.) The government has not been anxious to precipitate or unduely accentuate a crisis. It has been anxious rather to save something from the wreck. We are, therefore, compelled to accompany our accepfore, compelled to accompany our accep-tance of the amendments of the house of lords to the present bill with the declara-tion that the difficulty between the two houses cannot continue. (Loud and pro-longed cheers.) Without using any hard words or without presuming to judge mo-tives, we feel it our duty to state the un-disputable fact that the issue is raised be-tween a deliberative assembly elected by the votes of seven million men, and a different kind of assembly, though it was occupied by some men of virtue and talent.
That controversy once raised, must go forward to its issue." (Loud cheers.)
Mr. Gladstone said that he was rejoiced that this issue had been postponed in many cases, partly owing to discretion, circumspection and reserve. In the use of enormous privileges in the house of lords had on various occasions shown, he was nad on various occasions shown, he was -afraid, that the epoch of that reserve, discretion and circumspection had ended. Otherwise the members of the opposition must feel that in some way or other the solution had been found for the tremendous contrary and in the conflict of matters of high principle

Must Decide the Crisis. Between the representatives of the peo-ple and those filling the non-elective chamber he admitted that the house of commons could not take it upon itself to pass judgment on the matter or be final judge of its own cases. There was a higher authority than the house of commons. There was the authority of a (cheers and counter cheers) which must, in the last resort, decide the crisis at once. The government would regard the decision as absolutely final.

The government would regard the decision as absolutely final.!

The time had come, Mr. Gladstone continued, to invite this decision of the people. The circumstances under which the decision would be invited constituted a question of the gravest character. His own duty for the present terminated with calling attention to the fact that in considering the amendments of the house of lords, the house of commons dealt with an inseparable part of the question. The amending of the parish councils bills viewed in this light, had become a profoundly acute issue which would demand and receive settlement at an early date from the highest authority. If the government should ask the house to accept the mutilated bill, the advice would be given unuer a grave sense of responsibility. The government was properly unwilling to do unnecessarily anything which would stimulate the sharpness of the present crisis. They hesitated, therefore, to consign to destruction the only portion remaining from the arduous work of the expiring session. (Loud hoeral and radical cheers.)

Balfour Makes Reply.

Balfour Makes Reply.

Arthur J. Balfour, leader of the unionists, was cheered by the opposition as he rose to reply to Mr. Gladstone. He did not speak at great length. The speech just made by the prime minister, he said, amounted to a declaration of war upon the house of lords. He did not fear the prime minister's covert threats. If the government would appeal to the country, the conservatives would welcome the attempt to make public the opinion of the house of lords the issue.

Lord Randolph Churchill spoke next for the conservatives. If the government should choose to begin at once the battle royal on the constitution, they never would get to the Newcastle prgoramme or the budget or even the queen's speech. This declaration of war on the spur of the moment was founded on tender basis. If the house of lords had not amended the parish councils and employers liability bills, the prime minister would not have proposed, nor even suggested their destruction. Apparently, the prime minister had not cared to destroy the upper house on account of the rejection of the home rule bill. (Cheers.)

It was absurd to denounce the peers and proclaim a protracted agitation throughout

(Cheers.)

It was absurd to denounce the peers and proclaim a protracted agitation throughout the country for the abolition of them merely because the two houses disagreed over a few amendments. There was no justification for thus holding up the house of lords for the execration of the people. HE KILLED THE ROBBERS Who Slew His Wife and Child-A Desperate Struggle. Somerville, N. J., March 1.—A horrible tragedy occurred early this morning at the home of Moore Baker, near Franklin Park, in this county.

Mr. Baker's wife and one-year-old baby were murdered, and their murderers, Wil-lard Thompson and Henry Baker, both young negroes, were killed by the frenzied husband and father of the victims. Baker is a powerfully built young farmer, of about thirty years. He is quite well off. He married Louisa Evans three years ago, and a baby girl was the result of the union. Henry Baker, the young negro, worke! nor Baker's father for years. Yesterday afternoon when he quit work for the day he asked Mr. Baker for a loan of $2. Mr. Baker asked him if he could change a $100 bill, and, upon the negro saying "No," he produced the bill and showed it to him. This money was what the negroes were after.

Baker calmed his wife's fears, but upon her earn-est request, and because Baby Gertrude, who was in a crib beside her father and mother, was crying, he got up and lighted a lamp. He then returned to bed and had almost fallen asleep, when he heard a slight noise, and, quickly turning, he saw the two negroes standing at the foot of the He recognized them as Henry Baker and Willard Thompson. Thompson was armed with an ax, which he had taken from the woodpile, and both negroes were in their stocking feet, their shoes being found on the back steps this morning. The mo ment Mrs. Baker saw the negroes she screamed. Thompson leaned over the foot-board and struck Mrs. Baker on the head with the ax, cutting a fearful gash and killing her instantly.

At the Foot of the Bed.

He then went around to the crib and struck the baby twice with the ax, each time making a deep wound. The little one made a convulsive spring toward its mother

In the meantime Mr. Baker had jumped out of bed and grappled with the negro, Baker, and so terrified him that he ran into a rear bedroom. Moore Baker then turned to Thompson, who still had the bloody ax, and a frightful struggle ensued for its possession. Baker wrested the ax from Thompson and struck him in the head. He followed up this blow with others, and seven times he sank the ax in the negro's head before the latter fell to the floor dead. Baker then dropped the ax and ran for his double barrelled gun, which, loaded with No. 3 buckshot, stood in a corner of the room. Seizing the weapon, he walked to a door leading out into a small back hall,

He was followed by Mr. Smith hose speech, barring a few neat local uches, was mainly devoted to a discussion of the political situation before and during the present administration of Mr. Cleve

"My friends and fellow citizens: I most sincerely appreciate the consideration which you have shown me tonight. For twelve months I have been away from my home and from those who are especially dear to me. The position which has occupied my time have given me an opportunity to study the manufactories of the east and the broad field of the west. That study has not lessened my confidence in the future maternal growth of the south. I shall feel largely repaid if information can be gathered which will furnish means to aid the future, development of this beautiful city and of our great state. I do not look with doubt upon the future. I believe that we are about to enter upon an era of great prosperity and that the agricultural and manufacturing interests of Georgia will grow as they have never done before. The panie of last summer was the result of unwise legislation, but that legislation was not enacted by the present administration.

The platform of the democratic party declares in favor of the use of coinage of both gold and sfiver, without discrimination, but requires that one of these conditions shall accompany the use and coinage. Either the unit of coinage of both metals shall be of equal intrinsical value, or be adjusted by international agreement, or legislative safeguard shall surround the use to preserve the parity and the equal purchasing power of every dollar. I shall not urge a discussion in detail of the platform, but I commend it to the thoughtful consideration of every democrat that he may have the gratification of seeing that the democratic administration has followed it to the letter. But the restoration of confidence cannot alone bring prosperity to the country; a reformation of the republican system of taxation is also required. "I rejoice to believe, despite the delay in the senate, that shortly, without change to materially lessen its beneficial effects, the Wilson bill will become a law. Then I can see no impediment to the immediate revival of business. "The democratic party, with this great is-

LIMITED MARRIAGE.

A Matrimonial Contract for Six Months to Be Tested in Court.

An interesting, yet extremely ridiculous question has found its way into the California courts. The problem to be solved in all seriousness by the courts is this: a marriage on the European plan valid?" In other words, is a contract of marriage stipulated to expire at the end of six months or a year, a valid document? If the document be valid, is the limitation good? Does the limitation invalidate the contract? Can the -relations of contracting parties be legally laid aside at the end of the pre-scribed time? Would a child born after the limit has expired, and were the contract not renewed, be a legitimate child?

It seems impossible that in this day such a question should be seriously raised, but as a s^wmatter of fact there has developed among the California lawyers some differences of opinion on the subject,

Six months ago Edward M. Elkins and Lillie Mabney, of San Francisco, entered into a contract "to be married for a period of six months." A few days ago they again repaired to the notary's office and caused a second contract to be described. ond contract to be drawn up for another six months.

The young couple maintain that they have the advice of good lawyers that the contract is good. The situation is such a novel one that several reputable lawyers have per-suaded the young couple to permit the question to be submitted to a court for question to be submitted, to a court for adjudication. Just how to get this before the court is the question. It can hardly be accomplished by divorce proceedings, neither could it be accomplished by criminal process. Lawyers, however, declare that they will find a way of bringing the matter to judicial notice, in order that the ridiculous question may be settled at once.

Some of the best lawyers in the stat Some of the best lawyers in the state have taken an interest in the matter. Many prominent citizens declare that it is against public policy for such a question to be dignified by a doubt for any length of time. On the other hand, there are a few lawyers who consent to maintain the strict length of the terms of the limited. legality of the terms of the limited con what must undoubtedly be the law on the subject was expounded by Henry S. Foster, one of the lawyers interested. Mr. Foster says: "In the first place the law in the says: "In the first place the law in the state is never to dissolve a marriage agreement when to do such would be against the public policy. Surely no one will contend that it will be good policy for the state to permit limited marriages. Once married, always married is a good maxim. If the contracting parties have assumed marital relations they are man and wife, though the contract read 'for a day.' The only question is, to my mind, did the parties assume, willingly and honestly, the position of husband and wife towards each other? The limitation clause is simply null."

of the committee on finance during the absence and disability of Mr. Vance was absence and disability of Mr. Vance was laid before the senate; and Mr. Voorhees withdrew it, saying: "By the request, in-deed, by the demand of the senator from from which he has refused to be ed, I withdraw that resolution." Mr. Frye resumed his speech on the Ha waiian question, taking it up where he had left off yesterday—the consideration of Mr.

Blount's report. He had, therefore, he said, expressed his belief that there was not one plain, until prejudiced, unvarnished particle of truth in that report; and he did not now desire to revise that opinion. He could not ac-count for Mr. Blount's report, or for his method of investigating.

He did not know where Mr. Blount's prejudice came from unless it was from that old bitter feeling between cavallers and roundheads. Facts were to be found by Mr. Blount, but Mr. Blount did not seek them where they were to be found. He did them where they were to be found. He did not seek them from President Dole or members of the provisional government, who were familiar with all the facts. Mr. Blount went for his facts to the men who had eaten the crumbs from the queen's table. He went to her parasites. He went to British sympathizers on the islands Over sixty of those men had come before Mr. Blount. He had called on the members of the queen's cabinet—on Colburn, Sam Parker and Corpwell. As Mr. Voorhees, as the chaiman of the foreign relations com mittee, said. He said they were wretched men, and in them the truth did not lie. They deceived Commissioner Blount and led him to deceive the president of the United States. It was thus that the chair man on foreign relations excused Mr. Blount and excused the president. Mr. Blount had not gone for facts to the officers of the United States ship Boston, which was lying there. Her officers were intelligent men-men who would never tell an untruth, as Mr. Blount knew. They had been participants in the entire affair. They had been on shore investigating from the time it commenced until the time it closed could have told him all about it. But yet he had never called on a single officer of the ship Boston to find the facts except Lieutenant Swinburne, and he had simply asked Lieutenant Swinburne to in-form his. in writing, at what time Minister Stevens reorganized the provisional gov-ernment. Mr. Blount had never asked Minister Stevens one single question. He had taken the testimony of witnesses disparaging to Mr. Stevens, but had never communicated to him one word of what they said. Criticising Mr. Blount. Mr. Frye quoted largely from the testi-mony in condemnation of Mr. Blount's course in his investigation and read portions of the statements of Mr. Stevens, Mr Thurston and President Dole, whom, he said, this country had learned to respect. said, this country had learned to respect. He had read, he said, the statements of at least two witnesses to show that the en tire provisional government practically called on Mr. Blount and offered to give him any information which he might desire, and that Mr. Blount said in reply that he should be happy to receive it, and that he would notify them when he could.

Mr. Gray reminded Mr. Frye that Mr.

Blount had called on President Dole and his cabinet and signified to them that he would be glad to hear them, but that he felt a delicacy in requesting them to come before him, as members of the government

Mr. Frye said that he had read testimony giving direct contradiction to that state-ment of Mr. Blount.

Mr. Gray said that Mr. Blount has testified under oath that the members of the provisional government had had an opportunity to make statements before him that Mr. Smith, the attorney general the provisional government, said the same

Mr. Frye passed away from that point and proceeded to disclose the question whether there had been any conspiracy to provoke a revolution. The president of United States, he said, asserted that there had been; and Mr. Blount asserted that there had been. Troops Were Necessary.

Frye argued that there was proof of it, and he denied that there had been any. Mr. Frye read numerous tracts from the testimony to show that ony to show that the landing of troops for the protection of life and property of Americans had been necessary. He also read testimony to negative sary. He also lead testimony to higher the idea that any aid had been given to the provisional government by the United States troops; that any promise of aid had been made, or that there had been on the part of the present provisional government any expectation that it would receive any aid from the United States troops. Mr. Frye, in conclusion, apologized to the senate for having wearied it with such extensive extracts of his testimony and said: "If there is any weight to be given to character behind words; if there is any such thing as preponderance of testimony, then the foundation on which President Cleveland has builded his structure has disappeared and the edifice has fallen for-

Mr. Gray thought that something ought to be said in relation to a very honorable, able gentleman (Mr. Blount,) who was not present and who had been attacked by the senator from Maine for the manner in which he had conducted a most important public duty. The specific charge was that Mr. Blount had studiously abstained from taking testimony or hearing statements of those who were members of the provisional government or who were its supporters or sympathizers. Mr. Gray said Mr. Blount's statement before the committee under oath to prove the contrary and to show that it was not true that he had ig-nored such testimony and had confined himself to the testimony of those who were opposed to the provisional gvernment. The matter went over without further

At 3:15 o'clock the unfinished business was taken up-being the senate bill to provide additional accommodations for the government printing office; and Mr. Dolph, republican, of Oregon, addressed the senate, using the printing office bill as the text for a tariff speech. He thought that if the democratic caucus had agreed that the Wilson bill should be abandoned and that the son bill should be abandoned and the the existing tariff law should not be disturbed, there would be revenues enough to support the government and to provide for all necessary public works. The bill, he said, is to be remodeled, not in the interest of the country's industries, but that the votes of the senators from West Virginia, Maryland and Louisiana shall be secured, and that the senator from Ohio (Mr. Brice), and senators from New York may be planted by the senator of the senators of cated. Today the destinies of the indus-tries of the country are in the hands of three senators who were conspicuous in the southern confederacy. The majority of the finance committee is composed mainly or senators who were conspicuous in the great enort to destroy the union; and another member of the majority was conspicuous, during the rebellion, for his supposed sympathy with the leaders of the rebel-

Mr. Dolph went on to criticise the action Mr. Dolph went on to criticise the action of the finance committee in refusing hearings to the representatives of the labor and industry of the country, and said that the true reason for that refusal was that the majority of that committee was hopelessly wedded to free trade, blind to the object lesson, which the existing condition offered; deaf to the cries of unemployed laoffered; dear to the cress of memployed above and of idle capital, and determined to destroy the protective system. The Wilson bill, he said, was a sectional bill. It attacked every industry of the north, and was admirably designed for the degradation of American labor. "But," said Mr. Dolph, excitedly, "the day of reckoning is approaching; the handwriting is on the wall; the people will repudiate you." (meaning the democrats).

"And the next house of representatives will be as overwhelmingly republican as this one is democratic," Mr. Allen suggested by way of correction.

"The president of the United States,"
Mr. Dolph went on, heedless of Mr. Allen, "will be a republican."
Mr. Allen again interrupted.
"And the people of this country never will rest," said Mr. Dolph, without regard to the interruption, "until, by their ballots, they have placed the party of protection in a position to undo the mischief which this congress has already done and will yet do."

Mr. Allen challenged Mr. Dolph to show that representatives of workingmen had applied for hearings and had been refused, and said that he had been informed by one and said that he had been informed by one of the great leaders of a labor organization, which numbered hundreds of thousands of workingmen, that they had no desire to be heard before the finance committee. It was the manufacturers who desired to be heard and who put themselves forward as the guardians of the laboring

Any Democrat Can Offer Amendments in Open Session.

Washington, March 1 .- (Special.)-The two factions of the democratic party in the senate have agreed to disagree and the fight over the tariff bill will be made in open ession. Every democrat is at liberty to offer amendments, but all are bound to vote for the bill on its final passage. The finance committee now has the bill again, and the subcommittee expects to report to the full committee on Monday. The full committee will probably report to the senate on Tues-

The democrats in the senate, who are kicking against the bill all along the line, are Messrs. Gorman, Hill, Murphy, Brice, Caffery and White. Others are claimed, but they are really the only vigorous kickers. These men want more of a protective measure. The great mass of democratic senators, however, show fight, and intend to put the bill through, simply as a tariff for revenue measure. There will be no great changes over the Wilson bill in the house beyond some concessions on coal, sugar and iron.

Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, has introduced in the house a bill to amend the revised statutes so as to permit in civil cases the werdiet of three-fourths of the jurors con-stituting the jury to stand as the verdict of the jury, and such a verdict to have the same force and effect as a unanimous ver-

"I have favored this change," said Mr Bryan, "for several years, and my attention called to it anew by a suggestion made Judge Brewer at the Chicago Union by Judge Brewer at the League Club barquet last Thursday. In civil cases there is no reason why litigants should be compelled to fight until one can secure a unanimous verdict. Disagreements are usually caused by one or two members of the jury and a three-fourths verdict would settle most cases, making a great saving of costs. If a majority of a court render a decision even in criminal cases, why can we not trust three-fourths of jury in a civil case?" Henry Watterson's eulogy of Abraham Lincoln in a recent speech appears to have roused The DesMoines Register, and it alluded to it a few days ago in a sneering and somewhat malevolent spirit that drew from The Louisville Courier-Journal a few incisive remarks, from which we quote: "It this newspaper had been born a bird it, would have been a buzzard; if a beast, a panther; if a fish, a mud cat; if a reptile, a lizard; if an insect, a bedbug." As a student of what might be called comparative soology Colonel Watterson unquestionably takes high rank.

SPORTING NOTES.

If Silver King is no better at laying bricks than he was at pitching last season he will not make half a hand. It is the carnest hope of the Cincinnati enthusiasts that he will not change his mind and come back to the Reds. He'll not be missed in Cincinnati.

Captain James H. Rees, secretary of the new Memphis Jockey Club, will visit At-lanta the coming week on behalf of busi-ness connected with his club. The coming meeting begins on April 9th and ends April 25th

Possibly Murphy, the new college short-stop of the New Yorks, may prove a bet-ter hitter than Shorty Fuller, but it is a cinch bet that he will not be in it with the little sawed-off Cincinnatian in the mat-ter of fielding.

Latonia will, the coming season, likely be rated with the banner fast tracks of the country. Secretary Hopper's experiment of mixing Ohio river sand with Kenton county soil was demonstrated a good one last season even, when the weather was such as to prevent it from mixing properly. The snow, rain and frost of this winter will have the effect of thoroughly packing it, and with sunny skies and dry going some of the track records are liable to be knocked into smithereens the coming spring meeting.

Manager Schmelz has an army of players signed and reserved for the Washington. He has enough to make up two full teams, with a few to look on from the bench. While some may be under the impression that the Capital City man is making mistake with such a big salary list, the understimate a man who knows what he is doing "every foot of the way." He will turn his army of players to an account. He is going to open up his season of is with a series of exhibition games between teams made up of his own players. They will play under the title of Vets and Kids, and every dollar that cones in at the gate will stay there. He will have no guarntee to pay or any division to make. Gus did the same thing in Cincinnati in 185. He played four games between the Vets and Kids, and took in enough money to pay off the salaries for April. That series gave such players as Jack O'Connor and George Tebeau their first major league start. These games gave Gus a line on all his young players, and his team led the association race nearly all season and inshed in second place. If Gus is as successful with his coming Vet-Kid series as he was in Cincinnati some of those who are now sneering will have to raise their hat to him. If might be well to remark that Manager Schmelz has never had charge of their contract.

The only kick against signing a contract The only kick against signing a come from account of salary for 1894 comes from Pittsburg. Killen, the left-hand twifet was paid the limit of $2,400 last season and now wants them to go over the limit and pay him $200 more than any other players in the league. It looks like this individual is suffering with a bad case of swelled head and does not realize that this is a bad time for strikes.

There is little doubt but that Ed Ha by this time realizes what a bad break made by endeavoring to use Cham James Corbett as an advertising fake, has simmered down nicely and hasn't a word in a week. Possibly Ed "cut lo the fake while full of terrapin soup dental to celebrating the victory of American over the Englishman.

It would be interesting to hear a confab held by Harry Wright and President Von der Ahe some day affer an overwhelming defeat of the Browns. Harry can be platured as saying: "It's too bad, but we had a little hard luck, Mr. Von der Ahe." but nere are other words to fit the way Chris will express his opinion of the Waterloo. When the Browns get the short end of a one-sided engagement Chris can handle the queen's English about as vigorously as anybody in America.

Prize fighting is not the only sport that comes under the ban of the law on the grounds of brutality. The long list of casualities on the football field the past season has started the law-makers after the long-haired lads. There were more people killed on the grid-fron in 1894 than there has been in the prize ring in the past score of years. This has caused a member of the Massachusetts legislature to introduce a law regulating the game, with a hope of ridding it of its brutal features. Maybe the day will come when the football player, like the fighters, will have to sheak of into the woods and get their games off on the quiet in order to avoid arrest.

on next Monday the criminal docket will be taken up in the United States court before Juege Speer. There are about seventy cases on the docket, but how many will be tried is unknown. Some of the cases are interesting, the most important being that against ex-Postmaster Roberts, of Sandersville. He is charged with making large orders for stamps and selling them in places other than Sandersville. It is alleged that a big amount was disposed of in Atlants, Macon and other cities. The salary of his office depended on the commission made from the sale of stamps at the Sandersville office, and in order to increase his salary stamps had to be sold eisewhere. The large orders for stamps for the Sandersville office excited the suspicion of the government officials at Washington and an investigation was made which resulted in the arrest of Postmaster Roberts some time ago. He waived a preliminary hearing and was placed under bond for his appearance at the United States court. He had no trouble in giving bond, as he has always been popular personally, and has influential family connections. It is alleged that by the extra sales of stamps Postmaster Robert's commissions went from about $400 per year to $1,800. Ex-Judge Warren D. Douglas, Ga., March 1.—(Special.)—There was quite as much excitement here a few days ago as there was at Waycross during the late unpleasantness. Monday morning tae rear door of Vickers & Son's store was found to be open. As soon as Mr. Vickers entered he cast his eyes over the store and immediately missed a large amount of goods. A half dozen whole cheese, a number of tubs of butter, quantities of tobacco and cigars were missing. He dispatched a runner for Rev. Mr. Infinger to come and bring the bloodhounds. In the meantime Rev. Mr. Infinger arrived with the bloodhounds and put them on the miscreant's trail. But the hounds, instead of trailing off, ran first to Mr. O. Rudolph and then to Mr. T. P. Wilcox, two of the most prominent citizens of the place, nosing and baying them until everybody declared that it looked very suspicious and there was strong talk of arresting them on the spot. In fact, things were getting exciting, when Mr. Vickers proceeded to make a thorough investigation to ascertain how many thousand dollars he was out. By accident he discovered the missing goods, all nicely stored away in a corner under some rubbish, very carefully concealed. Rushing to the door, he shouted to the crowd to stop all criminations and unjust accusations and to come and rejoice with him, for that which was lost was now found. It then transpired that the heavy wind of the preceding night had blown open the insecurely fastened back door, and found. SMALLPOX IN UNION.

It Is Feared That the Disease Will Spread Over the County. Cleveland, Ga., March 1.—(Special.)—News reached here today that the smallpox had broken out in Union county, twenty-five miles north of this place. A man named Crawford, who was raised in Union county, left there several years ago, and went west and was taken sick while there and started back to his father's home. He arrived there last Sunday an gradually grew worse, until last Wednesday it was announced that he had smallpox. It is feared that it will be scattered throughout the county as a hundred or more of his old friends had called to see him. A few nights ago Mr. W. H. Courtney's store, on Pleasant Retreat, was broken open and a fine gun and some shoes and a

The same night a horse belonging to Mr. Jasper Edwards, who lives in the eastern part of this county, was stolen. A party of men started in pursuit of the thief. The horse was tracked as far as Toccoa, but could be tracked no further. The party gave up the hunt and returned home. On Tuesday Mr. Edwards found his horse tied at the home of Wesley Jones, in Habersham county, about four miles south of Clarkesville. Jones says his son had the horse and traded it to a negro, and he, thinking something was wrong, got possession of the and traded it to a negro, and he, thinking something was wrong, got possession of the horse and carried it to his home. The story he told about the affair and the circumstances surrounding it were such that a warrant was issued for Jones, and Wednesday Sheriff Blvens arrested him and brought him here for trial. He was bound over and, in default of a five-hundred-dollar bond, was lodged in jall.

The general opinion is that there is an organized gang—of thieves. It is believed that Jones is the same one who broke into Mr. Courtney's store, as he has a riffe and a pair of shoes that tally with those taken from the store.

AN INDIAN LEGEND. The Story Is Pretty Enough but There

Is No Proof.

Waycross, Ga., March 1.—(Special.)—
There are many interesting Indian relics and curious Indian mounds in south Georand curious Indian mounds in south Georgia. Many of the mounds, which formerly contained relics, have been robbed of their treasures during the last few years. "The Chief's mound." or "Mound of the Great Spirit," said to be situated near the western boundary of the Okefinokee swamp, is the largest in this section. It is said to have been erected by a good old Seminole chief in ancient times. In the mound, according to tradition, there is a vault where the chief's daughter was buried. Concerning the chief's daughter, a legend says, that she was very beautiful and was loved by the young chief of a neighboring tribe. They were to be married on a certain day, but she was very beautiful and was loved by the young chief of a neighboring tribe. They were to be married on a certain day, but the bridegroom did not come, and the chief's daughter grieved very much. Shortly afterward intelligence was received of the death of the young chief. He was on his way to the wedding and was waylaid and murdered by jealous rivals. The news was a severe shock to the young girl and she grieved herself to death.

The old chief built a huge mound and had his daughter's body embalmed and placed in the mound. The legend says that on the night after the interment of the chief's daughter, the mound was visited by the Great Spirit. He was heard to lament the death of the young woman. When he departed, he dropped a tear at the foot of the mound, and an oak tree grew where it fell to a mammoth size and is still alive.

Mr. Graham is an able young lawyer. He will be vigorously and unanimously supported by the bar here. Judge Sweat, the present incumbent, and J. W. Bennett, of Brunswick, are understood to be in the race. It is reported here that Solicitor General Brantly will at an early day resign that office, and form a law copartnership with Messrs. Erwin, duBignon & Chisholm, of Savannah.

Waycross, Ga., March 1.—(Special.)—The case of Tempie Faircloth vs. the Savannah, Florida and Western railway, was argued in the supreme court yesterday. It will be remembered that this case dates, back to the big Hurricane creek wreck, near Black-shear, in 1888, when twenty-six of the sixtyshear, in 1888, when twenty-six of the sixty-nine passengers on the vestibule train from New York were killed. Among these was Andrew Faircloth. At the time of Faircloth's death he was married to his second wife, who is now Mrs. W. J. Cannon. Wife No. 2 took steps immediately for the recovery of damages sustained by the death of her husband. The railroad compromised with

Three years ago, Mrs. Temple Faircloth, Mr. Faircloth's first wife, whom he deserted and was never divorced, learned of the death of Faircloth and brought suit against the road for $15,000 damages. The court gave her judgment for $600 and the court gave her judgment for $6,000 and the railroad appealed for a new trial.

AFFECTIONS COME HIGH.

A Young Husband Gets 87,500 for His Wife's Which He Lost.

Nashville, Tenn., March 1.-(Special.)-An interesting case was decided by the supreme court today. It was that of Emmet G. Bennett vs. W. H. and S. E. Glass. Bennett married a Miss Glass and after they had lived together happily a short time, she went back to her parents. Bennett thereupon entered suit against them for thereupon entered suit against them for $20,000 damages, alleging that they had allenated his wife's affections. After one mistrial he secured a verdict for $7,500.

The supreme court decides that the evidence sustains the verdict and affirmed the decision of the lower court. The case has attracted much attention in Williamson county, as the parties to the suit are wealthy and well known citizens of that

PRODUCE HIS BODY.

Will Purvis Must Go Before the Court

Again for Sentence.

Meridian, Miss., March 1.—(Special.)—District Attorney James H. Neville made application today to Judge Terrell, asking for a writ of habeas corpus returnable in June next to have the body of Will Purvis produced in the next term of the circuit court of Marion county, there to again receive the sentence of death. A writ of habeas corpus will be sued out by Colonel Hopgood, the train burglar and murderer lawyer, before Chancellor Houston at Purvis tomorrow. Hopgood has a number of friends in Marion county who are quite wealthy and will sign his bond for any amount.

HUNTING FOR ITS PARENTS.

A Well-Dressed Couple Hand a Babe to a Lady.

Chattanooga, Tenn., March 1.—(Special.)—A rich sensation is about to be dished out to the greedy public of Chattanooga. Both parties involved are members of the high society of the city, and are fighting hard to suppress the facts in the case. A few days since a man and woman, both magnificently dressed and evidently persons of quality, drove up to the home of Mrs. J. C. Crow and called for her. When she answered a two-weeks-old baby was thrust into her arms and the pair drove rapidly away. The police are on the track of the parents of the founding, which is supposed to be a love child.

"Old Hoss" Radbourne, after an absence of two seasons from the diamond, is once more in line. The old feeling has taken possession of him, and he is out with the announcement that he is "ift to play the game of his life." Old Rad was a long way from being on his last pins when he was here, and there is no telling what he has left up his sleeve. The old warrior can do more with half an arm than some of the counterfeits now drawing a salary can with a whole one. Rad knows more about the corners of the plate and can make batsmen hit at balls that they don't want to hit at better than any man that ever twirled a hog hide. If he is half fit and well, there isn't a club in the league that couldn't go farther and fare worse than signing the G. A. R. pitcher.

An Ohio Farmer Makes Some Interest-

An Ohio Farmer Makes Some Interesting Discoveries.

Hilisboro, O., March 1.—(Special.)—Farmer Warren Cowen, of Hillsboro, O., while fox hunting recently, discovered several ancient graves. They were situated upon a high point of land in Highland county, about a mile from the famous Serpent mound, where Professor Putnam, of Harvard, made interesting discoveries. As soon as the weather permitted, Cowen excavated several of these graves. He informed The Constitution's correspondent that the graves were made of large limestone slabs, two and a half to three fet in lngth, and a foot wide. These were set on the edge about wide. These were set on the edge about a foot apart. Similar slabs covered the grave. A single one, somewhat larger, was at the head and another at the feet. The top of the grave was two feet below the present surface. Upon opening one of the present surface. Upon opening one of the graves a skeleton upwards of six feet in length was brought to light. There were stone hatchets, beads and ornaments of peculiar workmanship near the right arm. Several large filnt spear and arrow heads among the ribs gave evidence that the mighty warrior had died in battle.

In another grave was the skeleton of a man equally large. The right leg had been broken during life, and the bones had grown together. The protuberance at the point of union was as large as an egg, and the limb was bent like a bow. By the feet lay a skull of some enemy or slave. Sev-lay a skull of some enemy or slave. Several pipes and pendants were near the shoulders.

In the other graves Cowen made equally interesting finds. It seems that this region was populated by a fairly intelligent people, and that the Serpent mound was an object of worship. Near the graves is a large field, in which broken implements, fragments of pottery and burnt stones give evidence of a prehistoric village site. Probably the people who were buried on the hill lived in this village.

CHARLESTON'S WHISKY BILL.

Sales by the State Average About $8,000 a Month.

$5,000 a Month. Charleston, S. C., March 1.—(Special.)—Greatly to the surprise of everybody the state today settled up with the city its share of the profits of the dispensary for the quarter ending January 31st. The sales at the four dispensaries in this city for the last quarter. last quarter, November and December of 1893 and January of 1894, amounted to $24, 827.72. After remitting to the state the amount due the state and paying all the expenses of the four dispensaries the profits to be distributed between the county and city treasuries amounted to $3,451.21.

The settlement was made today with the respective treasuries, the city treasurer re-receiving $1,725.21 and the county treasurer $1,725.60.

A DYNAMITE BOMB

Shatters the Residence of a Physician at Lancaster, Pa.

Lancaster, Pa., March 1.—The residence of Dr. J. E. Baker, a prominent physician, was terribly shuttered tonight, shortly after 11 o'clock, by the explosion shortly after 11 o'clock, by the explosion of a dynamite bomb on the porch, where it was placed by some unknown miscreant, Fortunately, none of the inmates were injured. Mr. Latta Hasslen, connected with the revenue office, saw a man place the bomb on the porch and hurry away. Mr. Hasslen was struck by a piece of the missile, which inflicted a painful wound on his lex.

Senator Colquitt.

From The Cedartown, Ga., Standard.
While it may be a little premature to discuss the senatorial election, there has been considerable agitation of the subject. It is certain that, in spite of some inuendoes to the contrary, Senator Colquitt himself will be an important factor for the succession. His health has greatly improved and he is attending to all the essential functions of his high office.

No Georgia matter has failed of enlisting

No Georgia matter has failed of enlisting his active sympathies and support in meritorious cases. Some of our people seem to forget the important fact that if Senator Colquitt has had his physical strength impaired, he was broken down, partially and temporarily, in the service of the state. For two terms of congress, when Senator Brown was sick at home, the whole burden of the office was borne by Senator Colquitt. For some time after General Gordon's election Senator Colquitt had a double duty to perform. These crushing tasks, which two perform. These crushing tasks, which two senators find difficult of enduring, Senator Colquitt sustained with unflagging zeal and in such exacting and unusual requirements he succumbed, for a season, to disability. Surely the state owes him a great debt in this particular and Georgia has usually never failed to honor and reward with amteful vindication the labors of such a faithful public servant. No mar such a faithful public servant. No man has, in every stage of his career, in war or peace, in youth or early and later manhood, been more devoted to his state and people than Senator Colquitt. And the people know it. They, appreciate his services in high and noble trusts, and they will not fail to testify their faith in him and his wisdom when opportunity presents itself. He is an ardent advocate of their best interests on the great questions now agiinterests on the great questions now agi-tating the country, and on those greatest questions of all which lie at the founda-tion of their property. questions of all which lie at the founda-tion of their prosperity—the money and taxing problems—he has been found faith-ful among the faithless. His fidelity, his, wisdom, his experience, his services, his lofty principles, his noble aims are im-perishably connected with the history of the state and the country. A grateful peo-ple remember them and we believe when ple remember them and we believe, when the time comes again to testify their senti-ments, they will reward his services in a substantial and graceful way, as becomes a proud, generous and splendid common-

MRS. SHORT WAS LEADING A LIFE OF MISERY

Until She Used the Great Remedy, Paine's Celery Compound.

The Burden of Housekeeping Falls Heavily on Mothers.

Housekeeping is growing less simple and more and more complex each year. A home that professes to be well regulated today is far more difficult to manage than was the same kind of a home fifty or sixty years

Upon the women falls the burden. Many work themselves into nervous haustion. Many mothers grow so irritable that they feel at all times half guilty, fear-ing that their disease—for it is a disease, and a most dreadful one-may result in affecting the otherwise sunny disposition of their children. What pain is to the broken Ilmb, such is nervous irritability to the exhausted brain. One is as real as the other. But thousands of irritable, nervous, tired and broken-down women have found their health and strength, and regained their even tempers, through the use of the great-est remedy the world has ever known, the remedy first prescribed by the eminent Pro-fessor E. E. Phelps, M. D., LL. D., of Dartmouth college.

Let every woman read the following voluntary testimonial from Mrs. E. E. Short, a highly respected resident of Haverhill, Mass., and learn of one of the thousands of wonderful cures that are wrought by Paine's Celery Compound:

"Though never very strong, I was always well until I was married. I was nineteen years old then and am twenty-eight now and the mother of four children. I got frightened just before my little girl was born, and I have never wholly recovered from it. I have taken medicine enough to swim in. I have been so nervous that I did not dare to go out in the back room after dark unless some one went with me for fear I should scream. "I have been very thankful that I used Paine's Celery Compound, for as a result I can now go out evenings and not feel so awful. Every one tells me how well I look. I do my work all alone, and people ask me how I do so much, and I tell them because I used Paine's Celery Compound, "My husband has spent enough money for me for doctors, nurses and medicine to pay for a home, and he is very thankful that I took Paine's Celery Compound.

The Bland Bill Passes.

Speaker Crisp cast the deciding vote yesterday to make a quorum, and at once the rule limiting debate was brought in and the Bland seigniorage bill was passed without amendment.

This is not only a victory for the people and the party, but a victory for those representatives of public opinion, which, like The Constitution, have insisted that the democrats perform their duty to their constituents regardless of the views of the Tom Reed democrats in the house and the John Sherman democrats in the

The Bland seigniorage bill is in the line of silver legislation, and if it is not vetoed, will augment and strengthen the funds in the treasury and prevent another issue of bonds.

The bill may be vetoed, but when it has passed both houses of congress the democratic party will have discharged itself of all responsibility concerning the measure. The party, in fact, will have given evidence, that it is not wholly in the power of the goldbugs.

The Constitution congratulates Speaker Crisp on the fact that his vote cut the knot of legislation. It is a vote that will be remembered.

A Goldbug Takes to the Woods.

We know of nothing more depressing, than the occasional efforts made by The New York Evening Post to engage in the serious discussion of important public questions. It is greatly to the credit of The Evening Post that it does some times make the effort, for its readers have an opportunity to appreciate the martyr-like spirit with which its editor faces difficulties that, to him, are insurmountable

The Evening Post has resented the formation in Boston of an organization which has for its purpose the establishment of a bimetallic propaganda. Mr. Horace White has made several flings at the committee, and has gone so far as to ask the gentlemen interested two important questions. General Francis A. Walker undertakes to an swer these questions, on behalf of the committee, and he brings to his aid a summary of facts and arguments that The Post was evidently unprepared for.

Nevertheless, the editor feels that it is incumbent on him to say something in rejoinder and he proceeds to do so in a way that is thoroughly characteristic. He avoids the issue. He runs away from the facts and logic that his own inquiries have brought forth. He declares that if he "had supposed that so much space would be needed for the reply," he "certainly would have refrained from asking" the questions. He explains that he has "no idea of going into a general controversy on this sub-Therefore, "for this reason," the editor "passes over a number of unfounded assumptions" in General Walker's reply; and he makes his escape by falling into a ditch that ought to be visible to any man who undertakes to discuss any branch of the silver question with fair knowledge of the subject.

In order to cover his rapid retreat, the editor of The Post characterizes as 'new" General Walker's statement that bimetallism does not necessarily involve. the concurrent circulation of the two We presume that neither "goldbug" nor "silverite" who really knows the history of bimetallism would undertake to characterize General Walker's statement as new. For it is the whole function of bimetallism, while providing for the circulation of both metals concurrently, to also provide a remedy against violent fluctuations in the market value of the two metals. Thus if either metal should grow too valuable to circulate as money, the market price being greater than the mint price, silver is there to take its placenot only there to take its place, but to remedy the fluctuation. For when gold goes out of circulation, there is an increased demand for silver to take its place. This increased demand for silver not only strengthens the value of that metal, but lessens the demand for gold, and in this way maintains the legal ratio. If the bimetallic system is new. then General Walker's statement is new.

But The Evening Post, in escaping from the discussion it has invited, not only falls into a ditch, but scratches its eyes out in a brier patch. It calls General Walker's attention to the fact that the house of representatives would have unconditionally repealed the Sherman law by a majority of twenty, "even if no votes at all had been cast by any state north of Maryland or east of ing Post, in all fairness, should have coupled it with the further fact that a majority of the western and southern democrats were in profound ignorance of the goldbug conspiracy behind the movement for repeal. They had so much confidence in the administration and were so certain that Mr. Cleveland was standing on the democratic platform. that they refused to be enlightened by those who looked below the surface of things and saw the nature of the conspiracy.

Fraud and misrepresentation were em ployed without stint. The doubting Thomases were told that the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act, was the first necessary step towards bimetallism. Those who hesitated were given to understand that they would enjoy the benefits of federal patronage. They were ca-joled, coaxed and bulldozed. Many of the leaders in whom the people had the utmost confidence declared that if they thought the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act meant the demonetization of silver in this country they would oppose it to the bitter end, but they assured the country and their constituents that after taking this first step to carry out the democratic platform, they would then take the second and final step to make both gold and silver the standard money of the country.

But now The Evening Post, in escaping from General Walker, taunts the south and west for demonetizing silver and establishing the single gold standard. Its taunt is well deserved, for it is a fact that congressmen from the south and west are mainly responsible for bringing on the people and business interests of the country the trouble that has fallen on them since unconditional repeal.

Leaving The Evening Post in the woods where it has taken refuge, we put this question to the people: Do you think it wise or safe to return to congress any man who so far forgot his own obligations as to vote for unconditional repeal?

Pull for Atlanta! The exposition is a fixed fact, and it will be a bigger success than its friends dreamed of at first In all enterprises of this character it is difficult at the outset to agree upon some of the details, and the advocates of different plans frequently engage in heated discussions which apparently threaten a disastrous termination. These differences in the end do no harm. They increase popular interest in the enterprise, and finally, when an agreement is reached, all parties go to work they displayed at the beginning. There is no radical disagreement about the Atlanta exposition. The people are solidly in favor of it, and they are unanimous in the opinion that it will do more for our city and this section than any other undertaking that has engaged our attention in a generation.

with more zeal and enthusiasm than

When people are in this mood they are not going to let minor questions stand in their way. They will advocate their favorite plans earnestly and vigorously, but they will not commit themselves to the rule or ruin policy. They will not sacrifice the main object because they are dissatisfied with some unimpor-

The committees representing those who hold different views in regard to the location of our exposition will hold a conference and agree upon a satisfactory compromise. When they get together and talk matters over they cannot fail to have the interests of Atlanta at heart, and they will speedily settle their differences and join hands in a hearty effort to pull together for the Gate City.

Public spirit and a willingness to make reasonable concessions will give the exposition a start, with every man, woman and child in Atlanta backing it and pushing it forward. The truth is, we cannot abandon this great enterprise. The announcement that it would be undertaken has already helped us. It has strengthened our credit, restored confidence, stimulated our industries and commerce, and advanced our real estate. If we go forward with it without delay, Atlanta will be the central point of interest in the whole country, and in the course of a few months our streets will be filled with a rushing tide of traffic and industry.

The exposition will be worth millions of dollars to us. It will benefit every class. It will start new enterprises which will double our wealth and population within the next few years. But suppose we give it up? What will be said of us? The enemies of Atlanta will rejoice, and her friends will hang their heads. The city will lose prestige and lose her nerve, and be afraid to undertake another public enterprise. There will be factions and strife and bitterness instead of united effort and harmony. Abandon the exposition, and the city will not take another step forward for years. There is nothing else in sight to take its place. No enterprise can be suggested that would do for us the tenth part of what the exposition promises.

Let us get together, and go to work. If we cannot do this, let us get things in order and prepare for a long nap!

Coming South.

The announcement that the Dwight company will increase its capital and move its cotton mills from New England to some point in the south is not a sur-

But it is remarkable to see the rapid progress of this southward movement, when once started. Following the action of the Dwight company, the Massachusetts company and Bliss, Fabyan & Co. announce that they will move south this year, with three other large New England companies. These six corporations are all engaged in cotton manufacturing on an extensive scale. They have come to the conclusion that their distributing facilities will be just as ample in the south as those they now enjoy. Then they will save freight, economize in labor and fuel, and purchase the raw material cheaper if they locate their mills in sight of the cotton fields. If they propose to utilize water power, they can find plenty of it in the south, where it will not freeze them out three or four months in the year, as is the case in some localities in

During our long financial depression when the northern mills were complaining, shutting down, cutting wages and reducing their force and their out put, the southern mills were running on full time and paying bigger dividends than any of their eastern competitors.

These facts are just as well known in the north and in England as they are here, and we may expect to see the capitalists and manufacturers of those countries moving and establishing their plants here until they make the south the cotton manufacturing center of the world.

There is no doubt about the speedy removal of the six large New England mills to the south. A statement from a representative of Bliss, Fabyan & Co. is published in another column of The Constitution this morning. In the near future some of the largest industrial centers of the continent will be in the Visionary Reformers.

In a period of hard times visionary reformers and cranks always push their way to the front, and among them we frequently find men of established reputation who promulgate opinions which surprise and disappoint the public.

Ex-President Harrison has always been regarded as an old-fashioned lawyer and a conservative business man. but in a recent address in Indiana he expressed these remarkable views:

It is well accepted as the right principle that a city council, board of county commissioners or a state legislature should legislate to create work for the unemployed. You may read any day in the newspapers an appeal to the city council to legislate in order to ald the unemployed of the city, and in the same paper turn to another page and read lengthy articles advocating the reduc read lengthy articles advocating the reduc-tion of the tariff revenues of the country. It is a republican principle that all legisla-tion should have for its prime object the creation of work for and the promotion of the comfort and prosperity of the laboring man. The national government is bound by the same duties as the city council or the board of county commissioners, and this duty must be fulfilled strictly and faithfully in order that American mills may keep alive the fires in their furnaces.

Now, this is rank socialism. In this country it is understood that the people support the government; we have never had a government that supported the people. Mr. Harrison would have been on the right line if he had said that federal, state and municipal governments should see to it that the public work which is absolutely necessary and which must be undertaken in the near future, be given without delay to the unemployed masses. But this is very different from creating work. When a government goes into that business the chances are that if will create unneces sary public work, and thus add to the burdens of the people.

Another reformer in Brooklyn is as much in the air as Mr. Harrison. Here is his remedy for hard times:

Let the employers of labor all through the country agree upon a day on which they shall increase the wages of all their employes to the highest possible point consistent with business solvency. By doing so they will place in the hands of the vast army of tollers the means with which to purchase a sufficient quantity of the neces saries, comforts, and even some of the luxuries of life. This will increase the demand for the products of every workshop, farm and mine in the land to such an extent that the present great horde of idle men will hardly be sufficient to meet the demand for labor. If employers will do this there will be no need of them reaching after the un-certain foreign markets, because the home market will be almost, if not actually, doub-led, and better prices will be easily obtained.

Perhaps in the millennium all the employers in the country will get together and agree to raise wages to the highest point consistent with business solvency, but they will hardly do it this year or next year. The Brooklyn man does not take notice of the fact that employers find it difficult to obtain money, and he does not indicate how they are to raise the capital that would be required to pay high wages to our army of toilers. The New York Morning Advertiser discusses another impracticable reform. It is the abolition of all laws for the collection of debts. The claim is made that this would place the world's business on a cash basis. Our contemporary says: Such a change in the law would eliminate financial panics and disastrous business stagnation. There would still be periods of greater or less business activity. practically nobody was in debt there would be no mad rush for hoarding money, at-tended, as now, by the wholesale crippling of industrial pursuits. If no debts were created except among the unimpeachable on the one hand, and the gambling element of humanity on the other, the opportunities and temptations to swindling, overreaching Debt is the great rack and general torture machine of our times. Try to imagine, for a moment, the effect on our civilization of abolishing it entirely The absurd policy of attempting to relieve the financial stringency by striking down one-half of the currency of the country is advocated by many statesmen and financiers, and yet there is nothing more self-evidently ruinous to the interests of the people. The threadbare quotation, "Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad," will come into every sane man's mind when he faces the facts of the situation. Have we reached a point where wisdom has departed from our councils, leaving folly to rule the hour? It would seem so.

The Haverhill youngster took very kindly to the idea and captured the discount each time the bill came To his father's surprise, however, the gas bill began to increase at a remarkable rate. PROMISSORY COIN CERTIFICATES. A Suggestion in Regard to Increasing the Circulating Medium.

Editor Constitution: Considerable anxiety is evinced at Washington as to whether or not there will be a continued deficiency in the government revenues, and fear is expresed that congress may yet have authorize a large issue of short time bonds to meet a possible contingency. But that such would incur an additional burden of millions of dollars in interest in al many millions of dollars in interest in all probability augments the concern which is felt, inasmuch as, for that very reason, a felt, inasmuch as, for that very reason, a strong and growing sentiment has developed against any further bonded indebtedness. With a view to meeting the exigency of a shortage in our revenues and at the same time avoid the burden of interest that another bond issue would involve, I wish to submit a proposition which, while suggesting something of a departure from our present financial policy, has reasonableness. present financial policy, has reasonableness, practicability and sound argument to commend it, namely:

That the United States government issue That the United States government issue what may be termed a "promissory coin certificate," (treasury note) in any reasonable amount, say one hundred million dollars, to be legal tender, non-interest-bearing and redeemable (in either coin) at a future date, say ten years.

The reasons in justification of such a course are, briefly, as follows:

1. The large saving of interest, which, on $100,000,000 at the rate of 3 per cent, would be $30,000,000 in ten years.

2. The pledging of their redemption in either cain will be obviated, and in the course of ten, or at the farthest fifteen years, an international monetary basis will have been established, securing for silver a permanent parity with gold in the world's

3. Redemption can be provided for by establishing a sinking fund, and the portion retained each year therefor, from the gov-ernment revenues, would be so small as to be inconsiderable. 4. The legal tender qualification impose their acceptance in all local markets, while the "popular" denominations in which they should be issued would promote circula

5. It would increase permanently by the amount of the issue, the money in actual circulation, without affecting present values of either coin.

6. The stability and future resources of the United States government cannot urged against this proposition; for, if can redeem a large issue of bonds and in addition thereto pay millions of dollars in-terest, out of our future revenues, we can as well pledge our credit for a similar indebtedness without assuming the interest. The "promissory coin certificate" will make this practicable.

7. And why should not a non-interest-bearing treasury note, redeemable at a fu-ture date, be accepted as a circulating medium with as much confidence as an in-terest-bearing bond? The latter confers the additional burden of an enormous bonus upon the people, while the governmental honor to redeem its pleases is the same in either case. The people are willing to come to the assistance of the government without a compensation of millions of dollars, and their constitutional rights demand that they should be accorded this high privilege of demonstrating to the world an unswerving faith in the promises of its government!

8. Bonds find their way chiefly to the capitalist, in whatever denomination issued, and if no opportunity be accorded them by another issue to give their money into the safe and remunerative keeping of the United States government it would natural ly find other investment, which would widen the field of labor and swell the money in actual circulation.

9. The issuance of these certificates would render unnecessary the exercising of stringent economy in government expenditures 10. In the event of the government desiring, for any good reason, to postpone redemption at the expiration of these certificates it can authorize a reissu tificates it can authorize a reason or a portion of them.

Before concluding, another thought suggests itself, which should have no little bearing in the consideration of this proposition. I do not wish to be understood a maintaining the theory that it is incumben upon the general government to provide work for the idle, but the fact remains hat the laboring classes are today in state of depression not experienced in this country within the present generation. They are fast approaching the extreme of physical endurance through the panic that has been precipitated by the contraction of noney, and their deplorable condition cer-ainly entitles them to consideration. Let congress authorize the issue of $100,-

000,000 in "promissory coin certificates" as herein proposed, one-half thereof to be devoted to a contingent deficiency, the other half to be apportioned to the states and territories on the basis of population and expended for such purposes as congress shall authorize, but in addition to the item already provided for in the sundry appropriations now pending. This $50,000,000 thus put into immediate circulation would carry renewed activity into every branch of trade, inspire the factory with new life and vigor and bring work to the empty-handed in every vocation, thereby restoring the era of prosperity heretofore

This proposition involves no infringement upon so-called "essential principles" not wholly justified by the benefits which would accrue to the people through its adoption. If, therefore, the propriety and practicability of the issuance of a non-interest in ing treasury note upon the credit of the government is sufficiently sustained in the foregoing, as I believe it is, the people should discountenance future expensive bond issues by proclaiming not only their confidence in the honor and ability of the government to meet its pledges, but also their willingness to accept these certificates as a circulating medium.

"I had rather some other gentleman bet-ter posted do that," responded Chairman

There were calls for Walter Brown, and in response to them, that gentleman arose.
"I want first to make motion against myself," said he. "And that is that the speeches tonight be limited to five minutes and This Afternoon They Will Hold

'All except Mr. Brown's," said Mr. J. C. Jenkins. "I move we except that."

Dr. Eli Griffin seconded Mr. Brown's motion and it was carried.

Mr. Brown Explains. "And now," said Mr. Brown, taking his stand near the rostrum, "I take it that the first object of this meeting is to commend the veto of the mayor. While we intend to do that in a firm, decisive way, we must do it in a kindly spirit. I am sure I reflect the continuous flect the sentiments of all of you gentlemen here when I say that. The mayor has ably, faithfully and impartially presented his reasons for disapproving the action of the council, as was his duty to do if he could not conscientiously approve that ac-

"Now," continued he, "I very much depremeeting yesterday morning and I am sure that some of them were the result of disap-pointment purely and that the gentlemen who uttered them were sorry for it after their anger had cooled. I am satisfied that their interest and zeal in this great work will not be lessened, but that as soon as we are all agreed on a site-which I am sure we will be—they will work even harder than they have done. The gentlemen at the head of the exposition movement are well equipped to carry it forward to splendid success. And I know that will be the result.'

Mr. Brown then submitted a series of resolutions on the line of his remarks and endorsing the proposition for the appointment of two committees for conference. Mr. J. S. Lester also submitted a resolu-tion, the tenor of it being that the question of a site be submitted to the people for their consideration and decision by vote. Mr. T. B. Neal Counsels Harmony,

Mr. T. B. Neal was next recognized. "I do not 'tully agree with Mr. Brown's resolutions," said he. "I do not care to ex-press endorsement of Mayor Goodwin's veto, for I consider that his message is a sufficient endorsement in itself. What we need now is unity of action. This exposi-tion movement is in great danger and we must do nothing rash. We must not condemn those with whom we differ, and we must give them all full credit for their honmust give them all full credit for their non-esty of purpose and integrity in all things. Even if we do not endorse what they have done in all respects. Now, I think these gentlemen have made a mistake, but I know they have done what they believed to be right. Now, I see here a gentleman who, while not a member of the exposition board, attended their meeting yesterday, and through whose efforts it was that the first steps toward an amicable adjustment of all differences was taken. I mean Cap-tain Howell. I firmly believe that, if this plan he suggests is adopted and the mayor appoints a committee to confer with a similar one from the exposition board, these gentlemen to decide the question of site—if this is done, harmony will result and the success of the exposition will be assured As I said. I fully agree with the mayor, and I think the exposition committee is in the wrong, but I stand ready to sink all my individual opinions and interests in behalf of the exposition movement. That is, I believe, the way we should all feel, and I believe we all do feel that way.

"I would like to hear from Captain Howell," continued Mr. Neal. "I believe he has the proper solution of the settlement of these differences, and I know what he will say will be of value to us."

There were cries of "Howell!" from all parts of the house.

Captain Howell Responds. "Your chairman," said Captain Howell, "has exactly stated my position. I am interested, deeply interested, in this exposi-tion. My interest is in no sense, a selfish one, but I am interested in it simply for Atlanta. On this question of site, what we must do, and what we will. I am sure, do, is decide upon such site as will be in the in-terest of no part of the city, but of the city as a whole. We must keep in mind two things—the success of the exposition and the great good it will be to Atlanta.

"Now, this is no time for bickering. The mayor was right to speak out as the head of the city government. His veto expressed his views, and it was not only his right, but his duty, believing as he does, to press them. Other gentlemen may differ with him, but it is an honest difference of opinion, and they have a right to hold it.

There is just one place to hold that exposition, and that's the place that wisdom and justice de cide is the best place. The people want the exposition and they want it held whereever will be best-for the exposition."

Captain Howell referred to the splendid start that the exposition already had. He said that no exposition was ever so well and so thoroughly advertised as this has been, and he pointed out the deep disgrace it would be to the city to let it fail.

"It is the duty of us all," said he, "to do everything we can to save the city from such disgrace. We must join hands and make the exposition a glorious success. We can none of us decide this question of site conscientiously and in justice to Atlanta if we allow personal considerations to sway us. We must get together, we must keep down strife, we must bend all our energies to make this the greatest success in Atlanta's history."

Captain Howell told of his visit to the exposition rooms the day before, and of his proposition for the appointment of com-mittees. The question of site must be decided in the interest of the exposition and of Atlanta; where it will do both the expo-sition and Atlanta most good. "And we must not condemn those who differ with us," he continued. "In the heat of debate we are all of us liable to say things of which we will be sorry when the cooler moments come. My position is that this controversy ought to be taken out of public discussion. We have no right to engage in quarrels when a matter so vital to our city is at stake. I believe the way out of our troubles is as I have suggested. I believe the interests of the city and the people are safe in the hands of the ten or twelve good and true citizens who may be named as members of these committees. I am certain that everybody will be satisfied with whatever they may decide upon, for they know it will be in the interest of no individual or individuals, but of the city as a whole and of the exposition. I should like to see these committees get together at once, because there must be no longer delay than is absolutely necessary."

Editor Blackburn Responds.

In response to calls Mr. B. M. Blackburn made a short but ringing speech. He strongly urged conservatism. "It is the time of all times," said he, "to stand shoulder to shoulder. The exposition must be, and is, bigger than any individual interest or interests. It is our duty to decide first that we will hold an exposition. The ques-tion of site is secondary. When that is de-cided—however it may be decided—we must all pull together as hard as we know how to make the movement the grandest kind of a success. If there is a word in those resoof a success. If there is well the referring to those which had been introduced, "we must eliminate it. There must be no harshness in what we do, but we must act as we know will be best for the exposition."

Mr. Blackburn passed some pleasant criticisms. The Constitution, paying this participates.

THE VACCINATION ORDINANCE REVIVED And Now Its Vaccination or Go to Jail. Three New Cases of Vareloid-Dr. Alexander Talks.

Fourteen physicians, their pockets bulging with vaccine virus, will start out early this morning to vaccinate the city's unvaccinated population.

The physicians mean business. They will take no refusal or excuse; it will be a case of get vaccinated or go to jail. At a meeting of the board of health, held at the office of Sanitary Inspector Veal, it was decided to enforce the ordinance requiring vaccination under compulsion. The en-forcement of the ordinance will be placed in the hands of the police, and it is very probable that more than one man will be locked up before night.

The ordinance providing for compulsory vaccination has been in existence for a number of years and was brought out yes-terday and burnished up anew. It reads as

"Any resident of the city of Atlanta over fifteen years of age, who has not been successfully vaccinated, and who shall refuse or fail after twenty-four hours' notice, to be so vaccinated, may be summoned to appear or be arrested and taken before the recorder's court, and may on conviction, be fined in a sum not exceeding $500 or be imprisoned not exceeding thirty days for each day such person so refuses or fails."
The ordinance includes the parents and guardians of children.

Two physicians have been appointed for each ward, and they have been charged with the duty of visiting every residence in their respective wards and vaccinating all persons who have not previously vaccinated. Besides the service of these additional physicians, the city physicians have been instructed to remain at their offices and vaccinate free of cost all callers. The Real Situation.

There were many rumors floating about the streets yesterday afternoon, all of which proved to be without foundation. Rumor had no less than twenty new cases in the city, and all of these rumors were traced down and found to be groundless The real situation was but little changed. Ella Dover, a white woman, about thirty years old, living in a cottage on Sampson street, two doors from Houston, has been sick with something like chicken pox for several days. Yesterday her case was pronounced smallpox in a mild form. She is about past danger and her recovery is expected. Since she has been sick she has been visited by numerous relatives and acquaintances. Many still believe that she has chicken pox.

Mrs. J. W. Scott, of 82 Sampson street, has been ill with varioloid for several days. Her husband is a conductor on the Consoli-dated street railway, and has been thrown in contact with Mr. Vaughan, the young man who resides with the stricken family on Ella street. It is thought perhaps that in some way the poisonous virus was communicated to his clothing, and in this way the disease was introduced into Scott's home Mrs. Scott was visited by Drs. Gaston and Hurt, and her case was pronounced to be varioloid. These physicians reported this case to the board of health and the necessary steps were taken to prevent a spread of the disease, a quarantine being established at the

At No. 1 Fortune street lives Mr. W. R. Kilpatrick, one of the night men at the Consolidated street railway shed on Exchange place. He fills a position nearly similar to that of Vaughan. Several days ago he was taken ill with a severe case of eruptive disease, which he and his family believed to be chicken pox. His wife was taken ill with the disease a few days after. Yesterday morning he called at the office of Dr. C. D. Hurt and stated that since the rumor of smallpox had been circulated throughout the city he had grown fearful that it was the disease with which he was According to the point of view taken by the bailiff, the attorney overstepped all bounds and he intends to make him suffer. troubled. In speaking of the case Dr. Hurt

"Kilpatrick has passed the worst stage of the disease. His face is covered with large red blotches, from which the dried up pustules have just recently fallen. I was convinced that it was smallpox. He said his wifes' condition was just about like his, It seems that Bailiff Conness was to make a levy on some goods or tools in the possesion of a blacksmith. Lawyer Woolf was the attorney for the blacksmith and told him to resist the levy and not allow the goods to be removed. He also told his client that Bailiff Conness was not a regularly bonded bailiff and that he had no right to make the levy. The bailiff went ahead in what he conceived to be his duty and he met with opposition. Finding out that the opposition was caused by the advice of the attorney, the warrant was the and that his six-weeks-old babe and fouryear-old boy had the disease in its worst stage. I did not visit them but reported the case to Dr. Alexander, and stated to him that I was sure from seeing Kilpatrick that he had smallpox."

Dr. Alexander sent out a physician and had the case looked after, and Dr. Hurt's report was found to be correct. The disease was in a mild form.

It was reported yesterday afternoon that there were three cases at 48 Pratt street. This rumor was looked into and found to be untrue. Cases were also reported on Yonge, Strong and Simpson streets. All of these reports turned out to be nothing more than fabrications. No other cases have been reported from the house at 54 Ella street. Dr. Champion is still looking after the restence. patients.

What Dr. Alexander Says.

Raleigh, N. C., March 1.—(Special.)—Governor Carr offers rewards of $100 each for Joseph B. Moore and William Littleton, charged with breaking into and robbing a store in Alexander county. Littleton is charged with crimes in no less than four counties In the superior court here today, judgment was entered in the suit of T. S. Barnes, secretary of the North Carolina Farmers' Dr. Alexander says there is no danger of the disease spreading if the people will be vaccinated.

Alliance against John P. Kerr, now post-master at Asheville, for $10,000 damage for libel. Kerr, in his paper, The Citizen, charged Barnes with having falsely certi-fied that W. T. Crawford, a member of congress from the ninth district, had signed the alliance demands three years ago. Kerr "Vaccination," said he, "is a sure pre-ventive. I have known in my personal experience of a man who was exposed to smallpox and who was vaccinated the next day. The vaccine worked faster than the smallpox incubation and he did not have the disease he disease.

"I think it should be urged in the papers that those who have been vaccinated should be revaccinated. The board has made the necessary arrangements to secure virus. There are people not susceptible to vaccination; these are naturally exempt from smallpox. The disease cannot spread here if the people will only get vaccinated. We are going to prepare for the disease if it should come, and to this end will construct at once a hospital at the quarantine station suitable for the accommodation of about twenty patients."

The Physicians Appointed.

There will be a meeting of the board of health this morning and every morning un-til the disease is effectually stamped out, The selection of the physicians to do the vaccinating was left to Dr. Alexander, who will name the physicians for the fifth and sixth wards, Dr. McRae who will select for the first and second, and Dr. Avary who will name the physicians for the third and fourth. The city physician of the seventh ward will select his assistant. All of the names have not yet been anno Cotton Closed with a Better Spot De-mand All Around-Wheat Better. Provisions Lower.

NEW YORK, March 1.-Business at the tock exchange today showed a material increase, save for the break in Sugar at the opening from 82% to 80%, and the bulls had the market under complete control from start to finish. Encouraged by reports from Washington that no radical change would be made in the tariff law, the bulls took hold of the market with a vim and prices mounted up steadily. Whether their premises, as to the senate's action and the effect of the same, be correct or not re-mains to be seen. Railway earnings for January, as reported by the Louisville and Nashville and Big Four roads, were more favorable than expected and this added to the bullish feeling. For the first time in weeks the market showed signs of broadening, and the commission houses had orders from out-of-town clients for the Grangers, Industrials and Western Union. Western Union parted with St. Paul early in the day, but later the foreigners bought Louisville and Nashville. The offerings of St. ville and Nashville. The offerings of St. Paul were quickly absorbed, however, and the price, when the foreign selling orders had been executed, crossed 60. Taken altogether, the feeling was more confident than for a long time past, and in the closing hours there was an approach to buoyancy. The improvement ranged from ¼ to 4¾ per cent, with Sugar in the lead. This stock jumped from 80¾ to 85½. General Electric rose 1½ to 42, Sugar preferred 2½ to 88, Burlington and Quincy 1½ to 78%, Chicago Gas 1% to 64¼. Rock Island 1¾ to 68%, Lackawanna 1½ to 167½, Louisville and Nashville 1% to 64%, Rock Island 1% to 68%, Lacka-wanna 1½ to 167½, Louisville and Nashville 1¼ to 48%, Manhattan 1½ to 125½, Western Union % to 86%, and Union Pacific 1 to 93%. Richmond Terminal securities were higher on the official announcement of the modification of the reorganization plan. The assessment of the common stock has been reduced to $10 per share and the subscribers are to get on all future payments 25 per cent in bonds and 75 per cent in preferred stock. In the closing dealings speculation was buoyant, with prices at the highest point of the day. The net changes show an advance of ½ to 3 per cent.

There was a good demand for railway and miscellaneous bonds throughout. Business was well distributed and prices moved up anyway from 1 to 5 per cent. anyway from 1 to 6 per cent. Sales of listed stocks aggregated 184,000 shares; unlisted 93,000. Sugar was dealt in to the extent of 87,000 shares

Whisky was a shade firmer on the announcement of a possible increase in the tax on distilled spirits to $1.10 per gallon.

The Grangers were generally firm, although there were some realizations in St. Paul and Burlington and Quincy.

General Electric was bought freely by in-side parties, and a local short interest was forced to cover a line of outstanding con-tracts on stop orders. The Local Cotton Market.

NEW YORK, March 1.—The market now has a basis upon which to do better for two reasons. First, because there is a spot demand at Liverpool which gives a basis for buying contracts which the market has not had since 7,750,000 estimates were first announced, and, secondly, because the action reported by the Indian government today to tax silver 5 per cent and all imports exeent cotton and gold, ac-would hardly have been thought probable ninety days ago. We have today, since the opening of the market, continually advised our friends to buy, feeling that the basis of our opinion is a most substantial one, namely: spot demand. There is a large short interest in all markets and we consider this a situation that might create considerable improvement. Continued weak ness for some time has invited a great dea government today to tax silver 5 per cent and all imports except cotton and gold, according to the cable we received from our Liverpool correspondent, will offset Manchester most favorably for the following reasons: A manufacturer in selling goods to India on ninety days' time or longer knows very well what profit he is making on his goods on the day he enters into the transaction, but with a fluctuating basis of exchange, such as silver, he might lose more in his exchange on the day he draws against his shipment when the contract matures than he has made on the contract itself. But with a fixed basis of exchange, such as gold, he can sell his exchange such as gold, he can sell his exchange itself. But with a fixed basis of exchange, such as gold, he can sell his exchange ahead or he will know practically that there will be no loss to him when he sells his bill. Therefore manufacturers of Great Britain can more safely enter into future sales of goods than has been the case since silver became a speculative commodity. This is our construction of the meaning of this action of the Indian government, and as Liverpool improved in consequence of it, it would seem that our opinion as to its effect is the reasonable one. If our supposition is correct, then it should stimulate Manchester business and bring about a continued and large spot business at Liver-

Commission houses were plentifully supplied with orders and trading in the Grangers, Sugar and Western Union rose to a higher place. It was believed that the distribution of orders by an outside operator in Sugar, who represents inside parties, was mainly responsible for the advance in that stock. General Electric was sold persistently by a bear trader who returned from New Jersey and executed personally the greater part of his orders on the floor of the exchange. Whisky was feverish and refused to respond to the better feeling in the general list. It was intimated that the troubles of the company are approaching a crisis, and a new deal will have to be made for the distribution of its product. The buying of St. Paul in the final half hour was traced to an operator who made such an unsuccessful attack on General Electric. closed at about the best prices of the day.

5 to 6 points above those of last evening. Advices from the south report a good demand in all southern markets for cotton for export, and the quotations in some instances have been an advance of 1-16 to ½0 today. Memphis receives today 479 bales, against 750 last year. St. Louis 480, against 701, and dispatches from a prominent firm in Pine Bluff report that that place will receive 7,000 bales less from the lst of March than last year. During the afternoon prices hardened and the market closed firm at the best prices of the day. A better demand for spot cotton was noted in all the southern markets and sales

Riorden & Co.'s Cotton Circular.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(Special.)—The market today was a very feverish, and uncertain one. The decline in Liverpool at the time of our opening had no effect here, because receipts were very light. May opened 5 points, higher than yesterday's closing price, but after that the fluctuations were frequent within a range of about 5 points, the bulk of the fluctuations being between 7.60 and 7.65. The close was tirm at the best prices of the day. The feeling is very mixed and uncertain. The bulls are again gaining confidence and are hopeful of a big advance, but there are many who predict and seem to believe that the liquidation of May contracts will occasion a tumble in prices that will throw the deciline of last Monday into the shade. We do not attach much weight to anybody's market opinion just now. Everything is going to depend upon whether the revival in trade for which everybody is hoping takes place. In the meantime we expect a see-saw market and would rather sell upon bulges and buy upon breaks.

manchester business and bring about a continued and large spot business at Liverpool and perhaps create more buying in this country of what is left of the American crop of 1883-94. But as we have a diminishing supply as compared with last year, and as stocks in this country are of no weight at any one point it would seem to be better for those who are short of actual cotton to buy contract for future detilivery, as a protection, and in this way, while spots are taking care of themselves, an active inquiry would be created for future months. What the next crop may bring forth is one of uncertainty and surely an unknown quality. In the meantime we will have a statistical position of cotton growing stronger, and in thire to sixty days from now it may be that there will be such a scarcity of cotton in America as would hardly have been thought probable pinety days ago. We have today since the But the feeling immediately improved, speculation increased and for a time an old-time boom prevailed; in fact, it contin-ued up to the close, which was at the best prices of the day, with the tone dull and sales for future delivery good.

The most important spot market, while showing a better demand, did not advance, Liverpool and New York both remaining unchanged.

Influenced by the firm closing in both New York and Liverpool the Atlanta market for yesterday closed firm at 6%c, with a good demand and some sales reported for export and domestic consumption.

In Atlanta spot cotton was quoted at 8%c, compared with 6% yesterday.

It is stated from New Orieans that 70,000 bales of the stock there are sold and awaiting shipment. The stock there yesterday was 293,046 bales.

From the same place it is also said that business is restricted by scant offerings. Extra staples, which have heretofore been unsalable, are in demand, and some 4,000 bales of that character were sold yesterday. The total sales were 7,000 bales, and would have been much greater if the cotton could have been had.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

CHICAGO, March 1.—Wheat—The bulls were in the ascendancy today and the bears showed a correspinding amount of disappointment. Every scrap of news that came in infused new strength into prices and inflamed the ardor of buyers. Eastern markets, particularly New York, were opponents of the advance today and questioned the correctness of the bullish advices. They also sent selling orders, buc local operations bought freely and the northwest helped very materially. May opened \(\frac{1}{2} \) \(\ sold between 60%c and 59%c to 59%c, closing with a net gain for the day of %c to %c at 60%c.

Corn was firm within very narrow limits. Business was exceedingly light and traders kept their eye on wheat for inspiration. The opening was a shade better than yesterday's close, declined slightly, then advanced %c to %c. The close was a fraction (about 1-16c) higher than yesterday. Cash corn was in fair demand. Prices were firm, but without especial change.

Oats were in sympathy with wheat and corn and were, of course, firm. May closed %c higher than yesterday. Cash oats were in sympathy with wheat and corn and were, of course, firm. May closed %c higher than yesterday. Cash oats were ifrmer and a shade better.

Provisions—There was an excess of 9,000 hogs over the number expected at the yards this morning, and prices were naturally lower. Products subsequently opened weak and lower, ruling so throughout the entire session. A total lack of support was evident and although a feeble reaction took place in response to the strength of wheat, yet the undertone was visibly weak. May pork closed 15c lower and May ribs 71%c to 10c lower.

The leading intures ranged as follows in Chicago today:

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter By Private Wire to J. C. Knox. Manager.

CHICAGO, March 1.—OUr wheat market started out in a very bullish manner this morning and continued strong until about noon. The first news that gave the holders encouragement and made the shorts nervous was the article from The Cincinnati Price Current, which places the visible supply of wheat at $54,000,000 bushels less than last year. While there are some objections raised as to the accuracy of this report, it nevertheless had a buoyant effect on prices. In addition to this Liverpool reported a decrease in her stock of 1,400,000 bushels. These two items caused considerable short covering, and the market later strengthened again, advancing to 60% con the decline in British consols and liberal clearances which amounted to about 600,000 bushels all told, Baltimore, alone clearing 10,000 bushels of wheat and 58,000 packages of flour, but a private telegram from there later says the clearances were for the week and not for one day only. The strong and higner cash market of the past week seems to have brought out liberal offerings both in the northwest and at Kansas City, the latter city being ½ lower with bids at the country elevators in the northwest reduced 1 cent per bushel.

Corn, oats and provisions have been featureless, although the latter market has been weaker.

Chicago Gossip. By Private Wire to J. C. Knox, Manager. The shorts were good buyers early on The Price Current, which is bullish, and on the liberal clearances at the seaboard. New York sold some wheat, but the trade has not been large. The seaboard is rather bearish.

friends in this city, who have watched his career with interest, and whose success is only the fulfillment of their prophecy.

Though born in Troup county, Mr. Pearce is a typical Atlanta boy. He came to this city about twenty-five years ago, and began his business career at a very early age. For nearly eighteen years he has been identified with the businss circles of this city, and his talent has been equal to every position which he has been called upon to all.

position which he has been canted upon to fill.

Mr. Pearce has held positions with the Atlanta National bank, P. & C. T. Dodd, the Lamar & Rankin Drug Company, George W. Adair and the Atlanta Home Insurance Company. He leaves the employ of the latter company to assume his new position. Mr. Robert Hosking will be reporter and canvasser under Mr. Pearce, with Mr. Molter as chief clerk in the office. It will be gratifying to the friends of Mr. Pearce to know that his position is the most important in the southern territory, and the appointment was made after the most rigid investigation into his competency.

most rigid investigation into his conspetency.

His territory, as above indicated, includes the whole of the state of Georgia, with the exception of Savannah and Augusta; the dities of Knoxville. Chattanooga and Bristol in Tennessee; the cities of Montgomery, Selma, Opelika, Eufaula and Anniston in the state of Alabama and a large portion of South Carolina.

Mr. H. C. Leonard was for a number of years the local representative of the Bradstreet agency, with supervision over the same territory.

HIS SEVENTY-FIRST BIRTHDAY.

Colonel George W. Adair, the Irrepres-sible Colonel, Happy Yesterday.

Yesterday was the seventy-first birthday

f Colonel George W. Adair.
The colonel was down town at his office

The colonel was down town at his olines hard at work all day as radiant in his jovial mirth and merriment as ever and telling more than his average day's number of good jokes and anecdotes.

There is not a man to be found like Colonel Adair. He has never been duplicated in the outgrowth of the earth's population.

If there was ever one like him he died extremely young.

Colonel Adair is the jolliest man to be as old as he is in the world. There can be no doubt of it. He is the best all-round citizen of America to his age.

The colonel has been a citizen of Atlanta ever since it was a village. He was the first railroad conductor that ever punched a ficket that headed a passenger towards Atlanta. He was here when the old town began to take on city airs. He was here

amid the thunder of artillery and the smoke

amid the thunder of artillery and the smoke of battle and saw the smoking wastes of rulned Atlanta in the days of the sixtles. He was one of the brave-hearted citizens who started first in the work of building to the new Atlanta, and in this arduous duty he has never swerved. He is today engaged in active real estate business and is prominent in every movement that is started for the general welfare of the city. He is a public-spirited man, a generous-hearted man, a good man. His many friends gave his honest hand a hearty shake in earnest congratulation yesterday upon his seventy-first birthday, wishing that he may live to see his hundredth.

This is the fifty-fourth annual commencement of this historic old institution.

Its record is written in the lives of many of the most distinguished men in Georgia, who have either graduated from its walls or been associated with its faculty.

The class which graduates tonight is one of the largest which has ever attended the college and is composed of many bright.

college and is composed of many bright and intellectual young men.

They not only represent all of the southern states, but, in fact, almost every section of the country, from Maine to California and from Florida to Michigan. The opera house tonight will no doubt be crowded to its utmost accommodation.

First of the Season. The exercises tonight will usher in the gayety of the commencement season.

They will be followed, towards the close of the month, with those of the Southern Medical college, and also those of the Atlanta Medical college, which is one of the

The present commencement season promises to be one of peculiar interest.

All of the colleges have been well patronized during the year; and the graduating classes are among the largest and most promising which have ever graduated.

Dr. Frank T. Powell will deliver his annual address before the Eclectic Medical Association this morning at 11 c'clock. Association this morning at 11 o'clock It will no doubt be an eloquent, as well as thoughtful effort, as Dr. Powell is a man of undisputed ability, and one who holds the entire confidence of his profession. The graduating exercises tonight will be-

MRS. HIRSCHFELD'S SIDE.

She Replies to the Accusation Made by J. M. High & Co.

Editor Constitution: You published in your issue of Wednesday morning the substance of a paper filed in court of J. M. High & Co. in reply to my suit against them. I hope you will do me the kindness to publish these few lines in defense for me I was in Mr. High's store just before Christmas and had selected some hand-kerchiefs I desired to purchase and had them in my hands waiting for a clerk to wait on me. Such a thought as theft never entered my head. I was horrified when I was accused by Mr. High of trying to steal the articles I held in my band. The statement in Mr. High's answer, pub lished in the paper, that the articles fell from my cloak or person; that I made efforts to get rid of the goods and was detected; that handkerchiefs dropped from my person on the way to the station hous and were picked up, etc., are absolutely false. I acted as many other ladies did. I took hold of the handkerchiefs and held them in my hands until a clerk could wait on them in my hands until a clerk could wait on me. If the statements made by the defendant are true I am a great thief, and they certainly would have made a case against me, but they never did so, but, on the contrary, when my husband went to the defendants to see about the matter, Mr. J. Mr. High asked him to sign a paper that I would not sue for damages and would not prosecute. My husband refused, saying that he had not seen me, and a short while afterwards Mr. R. J. Jordan came to my husband, saying that if I would sign while atterwards Mr. R. J. Jordan came to my husband, saying that if I would sign a paper not to sue High that High would either publish anything I said in the paper at his own expense, or would see that nothing was said about it in the paper. I was present and was both refused.

I am perfectly innocent of the slightest offense and I have been outrageously, injured and mortified. Yours truly, IDA HIRSCHFELD.

statements that lead to sales, it must be annoying to carry home the goods and tell the neighbors the cost, and have them say that they bought better goods here at a less cost. Goods sometimes are bought too dear and marked too high, in which case a liberal slice cut off from old prices don't make them any too cheap, nor equal to new well-bought goods. Getting the largest price possible at first is the old-fashioned way; but our system of doing business requires the lowest possible prices all the time, and we make it a business to see that they are. Atlanta Lines Will Be Slow to Enter the Slashing Business.

CAPTAIN BEAUPRIE TALKS ABOUT IT

All Eyes in the Railroad World Are Turn to the Louisville and Nashville. Other News of the Rail.

Much is being said about a probable rate war among the railroads composing the Southern Railway and Steamship Associa-tion, caused by the withdrawal of the Louisville and Nashville, and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis.

It is stated that this war has already begun to be felt in Memphis and Montgom-ery and other southern points, but inquiry at the local offices yesterday throughout this city, failed to verify the report with

There may be a war of rates but that war has not been precipitated here just

The general opinion abroad is to the ef-fect that the withdrawal of the Louisville and Nashville system means that these lines will begin to do everything in their power to get business, not stopping at won-drous cuts in rates, and that this would throw the greatest rate war upon the southern world of railways ever before known, owing to the extreme hard times that railroads are having just at present. It is thought that the hard times would tend to make the efforts of the roads that have withdrawn from the association all the more desperate. Reports from Memphis are to the effect that the scale of rates from that point east-ward has already been considerably shav-ed, and that the Memphis merchants are lubilant over the recent disturbance in the family of the Southern Railway and Steam-hin Association. However this may be, there are at present no indications that a war of rates will be precipitated here. Everybody is looking for it to come, but it hasn't come yet. Superintendent Beauprie, of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia system, which is the greatest rival of the Louisville and Nashville, perhaps, entering Atlanta, said yesterday that while it is commonly believed that there will be a great slashing of rates among southern lines after this, that he doesn't put much faith in such lief and such reports.

"Our line," said he, "touches the Louis ville and Nashville at several points, and if there was going to be much of a disturb-ance in rates we would naturally feel it and observe it about as quickly as any of the other railroads in the south.

"As for myself, I am of the opinion that Louisville and Nashvirle will think better of its purpose to make a war on rates if that really be its purpose. You see, this is the worst time that ever came for a railroad to be cutting rates. The business is not in the country. There is not enough doing to warrant a cut in rates.

"There have been times when a rate war was justifiable, but the road that engages war of this kind now is biting off its nose to spite its face, to speak in the language of the old adage. This is one time of all others when the railroads ought to be united in some organization where, with wholesome rules and regulations, the business could be handled without the demoralizing practices of cuts.

"By cutting rates the roads could handle o more business than they would have andled without the cut, and yet they would receive far less compensation for the handling of that same amount of business

"No, I think there will be no rate war.
Certainly not here."
In these remarks Mr. Beauprie seems to voice the general sentiment of freight and traffic men on all Atlanta roads.

summer, causing the cuts.
But the earnings of the East Tennessee have continued to decrease, and for the first two weeks in February they fell off $31,000. This was too much for the authorities of the system and the notice was then sent out that the company would have to go back to the cut wages.

to go back to the cut wages.

The reduction will not be made, however, on last month's salaries, nor upon this month's, the renewal of the cut not taking effect until the lst of April.

The employes of the road, being all con-

the matter and have carefully considered the matter and have agreed to accept the reduction, as they know very well that the earnings of the East Tennessee do not warrant a continuance of the regular wages.

The N. C. and St. L. Trouble. The recent circular sent out to the em-loyes of the Nashville, Chattanooga and ployes of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis by President Thomas asking that they continue to accept the 10 per cent cut in wages at first caused some_dissatisfac-tion, but that has all been removed and the men have agreed to take the reduction for

The committees from all of the labor organizations that called upon President Thomas found that the road was not earning enough to warrant the full salaries that once were paid and decided to accept the 10 per cent cut on condition that as soon as the earnings increased sufficiently their former wages must be restored.

The question of increase in earnings is to be decided upon by the committees and the president of the road in conference.

The "Ellen N." Playing Havoc. The "Ellen N." Playing Havoc.

The Louisville and Nashville has been tearing things wide open in the south and now it is to be announced that their withdrawal from the Memphis Cotton Association has completely wrecked the organization. The committee having the matter in charge dissolved by mutual agreement after the Louisville and Nashville went out, and yesterday a cut of 13% per 100 pounds of cotton was announced effective between the south and New York and Boston. The old association rate to New York was 50% and now it is 37. The Boston rate was 55% per 100 and that is now 42.

To Meet at Lookout.

The passenger agents of the south have been invited to meet at Lookout mountain on the 13th instant by General Passenger Agent B. W. Wrenn, of the East Tennessee, to consider some plan to aid in making successful the movement in Atlanta to secure the next encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

The purpose of the meeting is a com-

The purpose of the meeting is a commendable one and should win the favor of every passenger agent in this region of the south. With the united action of all the south. With the united action of all the railroads the city of Atlanta will be enabled to get the encampment of the Grand Army. One of the charges that has been made against Atlanta, or rather, one of the suggestions and inquiries that has been made is to the effect that Atlanta hears' to sufficient relivered facilities to according to the control of the suggestion of t been made is to the effect that Atlanta hasn't sufficient railroad facilities to accommodate the mass of delegates that would be attending.

This rests with the roads themselves to offset.

The meeting that has been suggested by Wrenn is exactly on the right line, and it is extremely gratifying to observe with what favor the idea is re-ceived among the railway passenger agents.

Inviting the Passenger Agents. The Louisville and Nashville railroad is now sending out invitations to the various general passenger agents to accept the courtesies of the Louisville and Nashville courtesies of the Louisville and Nashville and attend the annual meeting of the American Association of General Passenger Agents, to be held at Lake Worth, Fla., on March 20th. When the meeting was first proposed a doubt existed concerning the completion of the Jacksbaville, St. Augustine and Indian River railroad in time for the meeting. This doubt is now removed, as it is a settled fact that the road will be in working order by March road will be in working order by March 15th. The line will furthermore be ex-tended to Biscayne and Miami, Fla. A New Passenger Agent.

Mr. John Q. Morrison, southeastern passenger agent of the Fort Worth and Denver City railway, has come to Atlanta to etablish headquarters. He is a genial, clever fellow, something like W. A. Tuck, of the Richmond and Danville.

Mr. Morrison has had a strange and interesting career. He started out farming, then became mayor of Wichta Falls, Tex., and later entered the railroad business. He is one of the most wideawake railroad men in the south and will do his share of the emigration business when it comes to hand-ling those who go from Georgia to Texas and the land beyond the Mississippi.

R. and D. Officials Here. Receiver Reuben Foster and Traffic Manager Haas, of the Richmond and Danville railroad, were in the city last night on their way home from the meeting of the executive committee of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association held in

They were in the private car of Mr. Foster and spent the night in Atlanta. They have but little to say with regard to the troubles that have recently arisen in the Southern Railway and Steamship Asso tion, but express the opinion that there will be no considerable cutting of rates.

TERMINAL'S REORGANIZATION.

Plan, Leaving Out Some Lines. ew York, March 1.—(Special.)—The Drexel, Morgan & Co. Richmond Terminal reorganization committee has picked its flint and determined to try it again. After business hours today, the committee issued a new pamphlet entitled, "Plan of Reorganization as Modified."

The modifications are numerous, but not radical. The committee admits the impossibility of carrying out the original plan, but insists that with alternations now recommended, successful reorganization will be promptly accomplished, and to the inestimable advantage of all concerned. changes now contemplated have, according to the committee, been made imperative by the disastrous financial conditions which have prevailed throughout the country ever since the original plan was published, and the consequent great decrease in earnings of the railroads included in it. Among important changes now proposed is the leaving out of the "Cincinnati extension," the Memphis and Charleston, and some other lesser lines. The assessment on Terminal common stock is reduced from $12,50 to $10 and a likewise reduction in the assessment on East Tennessee common plan provided that new preferred stock should be given dollar for dollar for assessment, it is now proposed to give 75 per cent in preferred stock and 25 per cent in bonds for such assessments. A temporary scaling down of fixed charges from the amount estimated under the old plan, is to be effected by requiring various security holders to fund into preferred ous security nolders to find into preferred stock some coupons of the new bonds. The majority of present underlying bondholders will be required to make this concession. The new system, under the reorganization as now proposed, will embrace about 4,600 miles, and the aggregate new capitaliza-

Preferred stock , 48,000,000
Common stock , 120,000,000 Total $269,000,000.

The committee reports great progress in all formal legal proceedings, such as fore-closures, etc., necessary to the reorganiza-tion plan. It does appear that the modifi-cations of the plan now urged are just and reasonable, and what is more to the purpose, if they are not adopted, reorganiza-tion will be impracticable and the valuable properties embraced in the plan will drift into ruinous chaos, from which it will be exceedingly difficult, if ever possible, to de-

The guarantee syndicate, which was such an important feature of the original plan, has itself been modified, though by no means dissolved, as has been suspected. It still exists, and guarantees the supply of ten millions and a half in cash, to in-sure the success of the modified plan.

Gratifying Statement for 1893. The annual statement of the Phoefix Mutual Life Insurance Company is given elsewhere, and its evidence of ample and continuing strength and noteworthy growth will be received with satisfaction. It is a purely mutual company; its control is in the hands of the insured. The membership and emount of insurance have grown hand. the hands of the insured. The membership and amount of insurance have grown handsomely. The gross assets are now on a low valuation figured at $10,163,856, and the surplus at $556,288, and the "special reserves" make it over $1,000,000. The company's investments are known to be gittedged securities.

The strength of the Phoenix Mutual is unquestionable, and the expansion of its business and healthy growth are the best sort of evidence of the hold it has upon popular confidence.

PULLED A BAILIFF.

Deputy Sheriff Green Arrested H.

Speer for Assault and Battery.

Speer for Assault and Battery.
William McConnell swore out a warrant yesterday charging Bailiff Speer, of Justice Bloodworth's court, with assault and battery. He had no difficulty if making bond and was released at once.

Bailiff Speer claims that he went out to the house of McConnell and that while there the daughter, Miss McConnell, interfered with him in his attempts to make a levy; that she closed, or attempted to close, the door and lock it, but that he placed his foot in the way, stopped her and took the key out of the lock. He says that in the charge of assault and battery there is absolutely nothing. He wants an immediate trial, and will probably get it.

The Sale of the Marietta and North Georgia Causing Comment.

COVERED BY THREE MORTGAGES

The Minimum Price According to the Decree of Sale-How the Sale Will Be Conducted.

The sale of the Marietta and North Georgia is the absorbing topic in railroad circles now, and there is much speculation as to what will be the final outcome of the sale. It is known that it was the intention of It is known that it was the intention of the committee on reorganization to get hold of the property, but the decision of Judge Newman came in the nature of a surprise to the committee, as it had reason to count on further postponement and some say that it will not be in condition to make a bid tomorrow. It is also known that the firm decision of the court was based upon the assurance of Mr. Alex King, representing the minority bondholders, that a purchaser would be on hand. Just who this is or what company he represents no one can say, but the information came to Mr. King in the shape of a telegram from New York and it is supposed to be a number of northern capitalists wishing to obtain the property.

property will be put on sale and some have supposed that only that part of the road extending from Marietta to Murphy, N. C., will be included in the transaction. The Marietta and North Georgia proper extends from Marietta to Knoxville, and it is this whole line which is to be put on the block.

At first the road extended only between

At first the road extended only between Marietta and Blue Ridge, but afterwards it consolidated with the old Knoxville Southern, leaving only a branch road between Murphy and Blue Ridge.

Since May, 1891, the road has been under the direction of Mr. J. B. Glover, of Marietta, as receiver, and that gentleman, together with Mr. R. J. Lowry and Mr. H. H. Taylor, of Nashville, as commissioners of sale, will receive the bids tomorrow. The road is covered by three mortgages two upon that part of the line between Knoxville and Murphy, and the other upon that part between Marietta and Murphy. According to the terms contained in the decree of sale the commissioners in offering and selling the property covered by the first and second mortgages, to accept no bid less than $750,000, and upon that part of the road between Murphy and Mariettathey shall receive no bid less than $700,000. Record for February. Through Captain Chapman, deputy col-ector of internal revenue, a monthly report is forwarded to Washington showing how many illicit distilleries are seized and what property destroyed. The report from all the deputy marshals have not been re-ceived yet for February, but those already in show a large increase in the number of jag factories running without the permit of Uncle Sam.

During the past month at least fifty stills have been siezed and the majority of these show that the moonshine is plentiful. Rabun county has shown up better than Rabun county has shown up better than any other part of the country in this respect recently, probably due to the efforts of Deputy Marshal Ware, who for several weeks has been playing sad havoc with the mountain boys. One of the largest selzures made during February was in Dawson county, from J. W. Densmore, when a fifty-gallon copper still and cap and worm, six barrels of malt corn, ten gallons of wine, fifteen gallons of corn whisky and 1,500 gallons of beer were destroyed.

Another large capture was made in Gilmer county. This time two fifty-gallon mer county. This time two fifty-gallon copper stills were destroyed, eight barrels of mait corn, twenty gallons of low wine and 2,500 gallons of beer. These numerous captures during the past month are probably due to the increased revenue force. WATCHING THE SEINERS.

President Cleveland and Party on the North Carolina Coast. Elizabeth, N. C., March 1.—President Reveland and his party are moving still further away from civilization. Yesterday morning the Violet was lying at Long Point, near the foot of the Albemarle and Chesa-peake canal. After affording the party an opportunity to try their skill on ducks in the early morn-ing the little steamer hauled up anchor and stood away to the southward She crossed Albemarle sound and entered Crooton sound about thirty miles from her morning starting point. Here the vessel ner morning starting point. Here the vessel anchored and the party passed the night quietly in the glare of Crooton sound light, which was close at hand. The presidential party did not try its luck at gunning this morning, but instead went on a sight-seeing expedition. The president and Secretary Gresham are early risers, and by 8 o'clock breakfast had been dispatched and the members of the party began their trip.

The first point of interest was the seine hauling at Weymouth Point on the maingland. The fisheries at this place are among the most extensive on the Atlantic coast Shad, herring and striped bass or roach fish have already begun their spring migration from the deep waters of the Atlantic to the spawning grounds. They enter the North Carolina sound off Wilmington and through the inlet at Hatteras and at Ore-Carolina sound off Wilmington and through the inlet at Hatteras and at Oregon and New Inlet and find their spawning beds in the numerous streams running into the sounds from the mainland. The president, Secretary Gresham and Captain Evans landed from the Violet in the gig and inspected the workings of the Davis Weymouth flishery on Crooton gound. The tide was favorable and the party was in time to see one haul of the seine. This net is about two miles long. It is beyond the capacity of human labor to handle, so steam power is called upon. The party saw the seine carefully stored on the stern of two steam "flats," as they are known. The boats swept across the sound and returned. forming almost a circle and playing out the seine as they ran. Reaching shore, the lines were attached to a steam windlass and in the course of an hour the great seine was landed, bringing in its meshes barrels of fish of all kinds. The president was much interested in the sight. Taking to their gig again, the party then crossed Crooton sound and landed on Roanoke island, about two miles distant. Here conveyances were taken and the party visited some' of the historical points on the island some' of the historical points on the island. island, about two miles distant. Here conveyances were taken and the party visited some of the historical points on the island including Fort Raleigh and Ballast Point, where Sir Walter Raleigh landed the ballast which he brought in his little ship from England on one of his voyages to the new world. The president also stopped for a time at the quaint little village of Manteo, thus touching civilization for the first time since leaving Washington last Sunday.

now-a-days, without Pearline. And the strange part of it is, that you should be willing to suffer, when it's only for your loss-not gain.

That needless back-breaking rub, rub, rub isn't saving you anything. It's costing you money. It is simply wearing out the things that you're washing. Why would you rather do it? That is what the women who are saving their strength and their clothes with Pearline can't understand.

Sheriff Drops Him Through the Gallows Trap.

MAS COUNTY IS RID OF A BAD MAN

Negro Was a Desperado of the Worst Type-He Made No Confession or Profession.

homasville, Ga., March 1.—(Special.)— if Spencer, the noted desperado who terrorized the people of this county for amber of years, was hanged today for murder of his brother-in-law. Spencer Herry Spencer, the noted desperado who has terrorized the people of this county for a number of years, was hanged today for the murder of his brother-in-law. Spencer was led to the gallows about 1:30 o'clock and at 1:50 the trap dropped. His neck was not broken by the fall, death resulting from the property of the manufacture. He was allowed to hange the manufacture of the doctors promoted him dead. Spencer met his fate with nerve. He went through his part without the quiver of a muscle. He made statement on the gallows. In a clear place he hade Sheriff Doss and those presults when the part with two northern priests spending the winter here, baptized the condemned man his cell yesterday morning and accompaled him to the gallows. Spencer seemed wilke them and would readily repeat the gapers after them, but, unlike the average sign that meets his death in this manner, he did not claim to have a through ticket to the world above. The execution was pirate, only about thirty people witnessimil, and there was no excitement.

Henry Spencer was a mulatto about hirty-five years of age. He was small in hysique and would not weigh at the time of his execution exceeding one hundred of fifteen pounds. He was brought to

with the time of the country by Dr. H. C. Ramsey from the country by Dr. H. C. Ramsey from the country by Dr. H. C. Ramsey from the country when about fifteen years old. It had been in the service of Dr. Ramsey sometime prior to his removal, and always proved himself an industrious and aithful servant. He did not remain in the mploy of the doctor long after his removal here, but took up his abode in the western portion of the country. It was not long before he was taking a frequent and prominent part in the criminal courts of the county. He was put to work on the gang for seven months for larceny on May 7, for seven months for larceny on May 7, 33, having some time previous served a malar sentence. He made his escape from a gang on August 27th, but here he was the gang on August 27th, by knocking the gard down and seriously wounding him with a shovel. Spencer took the guard's rm and pistol and was only prevented toom killing him by a negro woman who was a convict. When he escaped he went to Worth courty, and after being there ome months, shot a man and had to leave. wme months, snot a mar and had to leave. He was recaptured September 4, 1880, and hought back here and worked his time out. On December 10, 1885, he was put on the mag again for fourteen months and served is time. He also served seven months from December 5, 1881. Shortly after he and served this last sentence, Sheriff Hurst and served this last sentence, Shell ridges thated to arrest him on a warrant charging him with a misdemeanor. Mr. Hurst was just up from a long illness and was mable to hold Spencer. Policeman Coyle ment to the sheriff's assistance, when bencer pulled out a revolver. The officer with the introduced fired it at the ground. ulled his pistol and fired it at the ground. bencer ran. The officer gave chase and red, this time at him, but missed. Spenmade good his escape. In the early art of 1891 he was recaptured in Clinch wunty. He was brought back and served we months on the gang. From this time bothing was heard of Spencer until last ing was heard of Spencer until last April, when Mose Green, colored, his broth-r-in-law, came to town and swore out a peace warrant for him, saying he was afraid Spencer would kill him. Two men went over the river to make the arrest but ould not find their man. It was afterward learned that Spender knew of the expert shot, he lay in the woods until he saw the officers return to town, when he went to Mose Green's house and shot him in the head, from te effects of which when died about two weeks later.
The evidence on the trial showed that the bad feeling between the negroes was the to a small debt which Spencer claimed reen owed him. From the time he shot Green until his arrest some weeks later, Spencer lived in the woods with his Winchester for a companion, defying arrest, and terrorizing that whole section of the country. The sheriff and others made several unsuccessful tarches for him and on one occasion had him surrounded in a house. Spencer fired a the crowd, fortunately hitting no one, and made his escape in the darkness. Shortly after that Mr. Jim Jones, while out with others looking for him, was shot, it not seriously hurt, from the bushes at the side of the road. It is thought that bencer did the shooting. It was evident hat, armed as he was, it was almost imble to arrest him without subjecting arresting party to great danger, and if Doss resorted to strategy. To make heriff Doss resorted to strategy. To make tlong story short, the sheriff got a negro flend of Spencer's to get him drunk, disum and bring him to town. He was tried and convicted of murder at the October mo of the superior court and sentenced to be hanged on December 23d. A motion for a new trial was made and pending he hearing of this motion, the execution as postponed. The motion was heard and overruled and Spencer was resentenced to hang on March 1st. On February 22d he broke jail and after shooting the jailer, made his escape. The hunt for him was reactifing. Dogs were used to trail Spencer and his companions, and Spencer had to be

COCKRAN'S PLATITUDES.

The Bolter Is in the South for His Wife's Health.

Jackson, Tenn., March 1.—(Special.)—Hon. Bourke Cockran, congressma: from New York city, arrived in this cit," this afternoon with his invalid wife, en route south, and remained several hours. His presence in the city was in the nature of a sur-prise, but despite that fact a large number of his admirers met him in his private car and paid their respects. A carriage was placed at his disposal and he and his wife were driven about the city. He talked en-thusiastically on several subjects, but fought shy of political issues. He was very sanguine for the south and expressed the belief that in a few years the great iron industries of the country would be centered among the hills of Dixie. He said if the tariff could be disposed of properly a new era of prosperity would dawn upon the country. He was asked about the object of Chief Croker's tour in Texas, and if there was anything in the published report that an effort was being made to place Governor Hogg on the tail end of the Hill ticket for 1896. Mr. Cockran smiled and said he knew nothing of it, and that Mr. Croker did not make known to him his plans before he left New York. Mr. Cockran left tonight for New Orleans.

RUINED BY A BOYCOTT. A Tennessee Farmer's Patriotism Costs

Knoxville, Tenn., March 1.—(Special.)—The people of Anderson county date everything now from "the war," by which they mean the miners' rebellion. From that epoch, John Longmire, who was before police court today, dated his troubles. When war was brewing, he was waited upon by a committee of miners and asked to join them. He was then a prosperous farmer and worth $6,000. He sold his produce largely to miners. Him Dearly.

He' refused, saying: "You may kill me and carry my dead body home to my wife, but I will not rebel against state laws." Then Longmire was a hero. After the miners had been suppressed they ostracised him, boycotted him and made life a menace by perpetual threats. As a consequence the boycott, he is ruined and driven to drink. He was arrested here last night while drunk, and a huge pistol was found on his person. Today, in the police court, all the facts came out, and his fine was

WANTS ALL TO KNOW.

A Gentleman from Madison, Ga., Says He Is Convinced Now.
Mr. W. R. Campbell, the local manager of the Gate City Oil Company, at Madi-son, was in the city yesterday. His vision had become so seriously affected that the had become so seriously affected that it worried him. He had been cross-eyed all his life, and while he did not take much stock in this painless method business he had heard so much about it that he called on Dr. J. Harvey Moore, the oculist at 203-204 Kiser ouilding. On being assured he would not be confined indoors nor have his eyes bandaged and would lose no time from his business he consented to have the doc-tor straighten his eyes by his "painless method." After the operation Mr. Camp-bell said, "I am convinced now the operation is just as Dr. Moore advertises it. There is no more pain about it than there is to sit in a barber's chair and get shaved I wish every cross-eyed person in the land knew as much about Dr. Moore's method as I now do. It would not be long before there would be no more cross-eyes DUEL ON HORSEBACK.

Extraordinary Battle of a Confederate and a Federal Officer.

War times and adventure were the burden of conversation among half a dozen veterans of the civil war the other day in Bowling Green, Ky. A writer in The Democrat tells the story.

"I have read many stories," said one of the old soldiers, "of individual exhibitions of bravery during the war, but I witnessed a duel between two officers of high rank that had I read it I would have believed it the reproduction of imagination.

"During the early days of the war" said the old warrior, "the federals, who had al-ready driven the confederates from southern Kentucky, were much troubled down in Christian county by a Colonel Wood-ward, who, I believe, lived near Lafayette, in that county. A Major Brackett-I think he was from northern Objacette-1 think he was from northern Objacette-took to suppress Woodward, but met with ignomini-ous failure in his first attempt. He was deeply charrined, but an opportunity finally came for him to show that he was no

"At the head of a skirmishing party h was quietly marching down the road one day when suddenly he came upon a similar party of confederates. The unexpected meeting threw both parties into confusion, and before either had a chance to form for a fight Brackett ordered his men to remain quiet and rode forward. It was a remarkable course, and, I believe, without a parallel in the history of the war, but he chal-lenged the commanding officer of the rebels to a personal conflict.

"It happened that the confederate officer was Major Valentine, whose home was in Memphis. He was one of Forrest's men, and had a reputation as a man of aggres sive personal daring. He was surprised at the unusual challenge, but he immediately accepted, and the two officers, in plain view of their commands, galloped toward each other with drawn sabers. "They went at each other like knights of old, and a thrilling duel followed. The horses turned, charged and reared with wonderful rapidity. The sabers hissed viciously. Blood was drawn on both sides The officers charged again. Brackett made a savage cut at Valentine, who dodged. "The officers charged again. The Leader of the Famous Fighters, and His Death.

Representative Oates, of Alabama, who lost an arm as a confederate officer, was recalling his knowledge of Colonel Bob Wheat, of the famous "Louisiana Tigers," says The St. Louis Post-Dispatch. "They were well named," remarked Colonel Oates. "Wheat was educated for the

"The train stopped there, and in a few minutes Wheat's men had entire possession of an adjacent hotel and the barroom. The local authorities were powerless. Wheat, who was asleep in a car of the train, was aroused, and he rushed out with a locked revolver in his hand.

"He ordered the men back to their cars, and they obeyed, with the exception of a small group, led by two desperate-looking fellows. Wheat shot both of them dead and left them in Opelika. I got to know him well in Virginia during the war.

"He told me the only way to control his men was to shoot down those who disobeyed or defied him, and yet they loved him with the fidelity of dogs. They were despetate fighters, and Beauregard complimented them in his official report of the first battle of Manassas.

On our way to the battle of Cold Harbor, Colonel Wheat insisted to Lieutenant Colonel Peck, of the Ninth Louisiana regiment, and myself, that he would be killed in the coming battle. WAR TIME ARITHMETIC. How the Rudiments of Mathematics

Were Taught to Sonthern Children. From The New York Herald. In a second-hand bookstore the other day a visitor bought for a dime a little, old, worn and castaway volume which, in the manner of its forms and examples, told a simple and pathetic story of the gloom and sorrow which darkened even the innocent lives of children at the south during the weary years of war. It was a copy of a school arithmetic, one for beginners, and was published at Raleigh, N. C., in 1863, by Branson & Farrar. The author was L. Johnson, professor of mathematics in Trin-ity college, who modestly says in his pre-

"The great demand for books at this time of an elementary character in the souther confederacy has called forth this little vol ume. Nothing new or original has been attempted. The compass of the work is such that it can be thoroughly learned by the youth of either sex, before their presence at home or the demands of their country debar the privilege of attendance at school. War and Arithmetic.

The spirit which then animated the peo-ple of the south is manifest on every page, and and in almost every example of this lit-tle book. It is the spirit of war. The questions do not ask the youthful scholar how many flowers it would take to enable him to give two to each of his three companions, nor how many peaches John and Charley together would have if one had four and the other three. There is no puzzling inquiry as to how many lambs Jennie would have if to her present nine five others were add-ed, or how many ginger cakes Walter would have left left if he divided his dozen equally

None of such mild elements would do for the times. The life of the south and the impulses of its people were hedged about by war. Little wonder then that the author of this arithmetic should discard the comor this aritiments should discretify mon things of life and use for illustrating his examples the terrible actual elements involvel in the mighty combat whose thunders floated from bloody fields through the schoolhouse windows. How plainly and how vividly the influences and forces then

Cost of Living.
Unconsciously this little book tells another tale, and a sad one, about the cost of living, then oppressively high in every part of the south. The following questions were likely not only to develop the mental acuteness of southern children, but also to impress them with the fact that the needful things of life were limited in supply and difficult to obtain:

"At $10 a pound how much coffee can you buy for $40?" "If eleven quires of paper cost $22, what is "If eleven quires of paper cost $22, what is the cost of one quire?"

"If one bushel of potatoes cost $4, how many can you buy for $48?"

"How many hats can you buy for $108 if one hat costs $12?"

"The sum of $105,000 is paid to an army of 42,000 men. What does each receive?"

"If a trader makes 40 cents a pound on every pound of butter he sells, how much will he make on eight pounds?"

THOSE ENGINE HOUSES

The Rejection of Contractor Culver's Bid Has Made Him and His Friends

QUITE WARM AND THEY ARE DISPLEASED

Mr. Culver Writes a Card in Which He Gives His Side of the Case-The Bids May All Be Off.

Those two new engine houses may cause Some fun yet.

When the board of fire masters opened the bids for the work it was found that the lowest bid for both houses had been made by Mr. Culver, of the seventh ward, and the architects were requested to award the contract to Mr. Culver after he had made the necessary bond.

Mr. Culver went to work at once to perfect his bond, and in doing so secured the signatures of Mr. Jack Kelly, Mr. L. Cohen and the Jentzen brothers. These gentle-men signed the bond readily and with their signatures Mr. Culver carried to the architects a paper showing what each one of them was worth. The bond, however, did not suit the architects and was declined. Then the board of fire masters were called together and asked to consider the matter again. The bid of Mr. Culver and the names of his bondsmen were discussed and the bids of the other contractors were taken up. The board, after a lengthy con-sideration, came to the conclusion that the architects were right in rejecting the bond of Mr. Culver and at once decided to let the contract to the next lowest bidder rather than advertise again for bids for the work. The bids of the other contractors were considered and the bid of Mr. Wagner was found to be the best and most available and the contract for the two new engine houses were awarded to him, he stat-ing that he would not ask for one cent of money until the buildings were both completed and the keys were turned over to the city and the bulldings inspected and ac-cepted. This contract was one of the best the city has ever made and the members of the board of fire masters have been con-gratulating themselves since.

But Mr. Culver is not pleased with the action of the board and in a card to the people has something to say. That card reads: "Editor Constitution-In today's Consti tution it is stated that at an extra session of the board of firemasters my bid for building the two engine houses was declared off because the members were advised that the bond submitted was not satisfactory to the architects. How this can be the true reason for increasing the expenditures in erecting these buildings from $800 to $1,000 I am unable to understand, and possibly the tax-payers would like a better explanation when the fact is stated that my bond for $6,000, submitted, was signed by such gentlemen as Messrs. John Kelly, who returns $14,000 in real estate; W. A. Jentzen and John H. Jentzen, whose returns for real estate is $12,000, or more, and L. Cohen, who obligated himself for $1,000 and is worth quite as much probably as either of the co-signers.

"The architects are Messrs. Bruce & Morgan. When I submitted my bond, with the certificate of the tax collector of the county, Mr. Morgan, who appeared to have the matter in hand, while admitting my competency to properly discharge the con-tract in the presence of Mr. John Bishop, stated 'that he would prefer me to get a bond from a better element; that all my securities were all in the whisky business This probably is the reason, at least I be lieve it is why the architects 'were not satisfied, or they may have desired to use their influence in behalf of some favorite. I leave the public to draw their own conclusions. Respectfully, M. T. CULVER."

An Important Difference. To make it apparent to thousands who think themselves ill, that they are not af-fected with any disease, but that the system simply needs cleansing, is to bring comfort home to their hearts, as a costive condition is easily cured by using Syrup of Figs.
